1 Search strategy creation

This project is an update of a previously published systematic review.[1] However, as an information professional was not used to create the search strategy, it was decided that a new search would be created for this update.

A draft search strategy was compiled in the OvidSP Medline database by an experienced information specialist (JF). The search included strings of terms, synonyms and controlled vocabulary terms (where available) to reflect three concepts:

Concept 1: Evidence

Concept 2: Barriers and facilitators

Concept 3: Policymakers

The search terms used in this search are very common so it was decided to use proximity searches to increase the precision of the search, where this technique was available.

In order to capture information from across disciplines and contexts, no geographical, methodological or language limits were applied.

This search strategy was refined with the project team until the results retrieved reflected the scope of the project. The agreed OvidSP Medline search was adapted for each database to incorporate database-specific syntax and controlled vocabularies. Full details of the search strings used for each database can be found in the appendix.

3 Information management

The search results from the previous review were imported into EndNote 20 software. Then all citations identified by our updated searches were imported. This allowed accurate updating of results with only items not previously retrieved being put forward for screening. Duplicates were identified and removed using the method described on the LAS blog.[2]

Once duplicates and previous results were removed, results were exported in .ris format from EndNote 20 to Eppi-Reviewer Web software for screening.

4 Results

A total of 130,862 results were retrieved by the database searches. 46,131 (35%) were identified as duplicates. Number of results pre-and post-deduplication are listed in the table below.

This appendix provides full details of all search strings, with dates and number of references returned and notes explaining any unusual search techniques or syntax. The EndNote 20 import order is provided, as the deduplication technique keeps the first uploaded copy of the reference by default.
