SIT 14

l ʿzz bn grm ḏ- ʾl kkbn

By ʿzz son of Grm of the lineage of Kkbn

Apparatus Criticus:
SIT: the n at the end is uncertain. JMAA XIII p.197: the n at the end is certain and the sign of a circle with a cross in it is a wasm.

Commentary:
SIT points out the k's resemble Thamudic ġ's which is mistakenly printed as g in the publication. SIT would have been referring to Thamudic E. There is definitely a short stroke at the end after the b although it is inscribed in a slightly different technique. The circle with a cross in the middle might be a wasm as suggested by JMAA XIII but this is by no means certain.

Provenance:

H unp.: f h lt {n}ṣr at the end "So Lt [give] victory".

Commentary:
The n after the first r is clear on the photograph. The most likely reading of the word after the second w is r{ʿ}{y} which presumably the author repeated by mistake. The first letter resembles a r more than a b the second letter is uncertain but there could be an intentional dot inscribed slightly away from the centre of the preceding letter and the next letter is a line with a hammered dot at one end although it is not as pronounced as the one in the y of the previous word. The next letter is definitely an ʾ and is followed by a slight dash and then a gap which is large enough for another letter but nothing has been inscribed there possibly because the author wanted to avoid a crack in the rock. The letter after the gap could be a b or a r as could the letter which has been added to the side of the k. The letters {ġ}rt are written in thicker lines and the r is joined to the t. There is then a w which is partially infilled and a n.

SIT: h ʾṣh "the staff". JMAA VIII p. 7: ġṯ for ġr; the end bn gnhʿ ṣh "son of Gnhʿ. Silence!".

Commentary:
JMAA VIII probably reads the third letter as a ṯ because the arms of the letter are slightly thickened lines but since the horizontal line is a curve and there is no evidence of circles at the end SIT's reading is most likely justified.

Provenance:
Near Km. 938, unspecified region, unspecified country.

By {Mʿṣ} w ws¹q h- mbgḥt f ʾnqḏ (f) ṣyr w ḫs¹f

Apparatus Criticus:
SIT: gʿṣ for (m)ʿṣ; h mrgḥt for h mbjḥt; translated from w ws¹q as "and he drove the camels. So he escaped and returned and he became lean". CEDS 74: l mʿṣ w ws¹q h mbjḥt f ʾnqḏ f ṣyr w ḫs¹f. JMAA VIII p. 7: gnṣ for (m)ʿṣ; ws¹q "to gather"; ʾnqḏ "he was rescued"; ṣyr "to migrate". ḫs¹f cf. C 3064 translated in JSM p. 507. H unp.: w ws¹q h mrjḥt "And he drove the camels which had a quivering motion in going along with short steps" or "He withstood the heavily armed men".

Commentary:
The reading of CEDS has not been checked but since it was made from the original there is probably some justification in emmending the second letter to m and in reading the letter after the second m as b.

By Rf'l son of Tfn

Commentary:
The text is carved on a fine limestone relief showing the god Baʿal-Šamīn in the centre with Aglibōl on his right and Malakbēl on the left. There are five Palmyrene graffiti (SS 1, 2, 4, 5, 7), one Greek (SS 6) and one Safaitic (SS 3) carved between the figures. The last is carved vertically on the lower right of the relief beside the sword of Malakbēl. For the bibliography on the relief and an excellent photograph see Dentzer-Feydy & Teixidor 1993: 144–145, no. 153 (but note that the transliteration of the Safaitic inscription contains a misprint in the second name). The same two names occur in both the Safaitic inscription and in one of the Palmyrene texts (SS 2). Starcky's copy of SS 3 shows a curving line at the end of the Safaitic inscription but this is not confirmed on the photograph.

Provenance:
Said to have come from Wādī Miyah, not far from Biʾr Wereb, The Palmyrene, Syria
Musée du Louvre bought the relief from a dealer in 1945.

Stein 1.1

(l) ʾwdm h- bkrt

{By} ʾwdm is the young she-camel

Apparatus Criticus:
RVP: There is no mention in the commentary that the first letter in the copy has the form of a h.

Commentary:
The copy has a h for the first letter. There are dots between the arms of the b and k of bkrt. It is possible that h- bkrt belongs to Stein 1.2 rather than with this text.

Provenance:
At the foot of a cairn on a small hill 1/4 mile north of telegraph post 448-447 RVP p. 255, unspecified region, unspecified country.
Between H5 & H4

l gfft bn mlkt bn bḫlh bn ys^{1}lm bn ḍr bn mʾqn w rʿy h- rmḫ nwy f nf{r} m- nbṭ s^{1}nt qtl ḥmt

By Gfft son of Mlkt son of Bnḫlh son of Ys^{1}lm son of Ḍr son of Mʾqn and he pastured the herd of camels whilst migrating with the tribe and so he fled from Nabataeans the year of the killing of Ḥmt

Apparatus Criticus:
TaNS 1: w rʿy h- rmḫn w yẓlẓl m- nbṭ s^{1}nt qtl ḥmt. Trans: wa raʿā al-ʿušb wa tawārā (wa tasattara) min al-ʾanbāṭ sanah qatl Ḥmt

Commentary:
The letters read as the n of nf{r} and nwy are much shorter on the rock than in the copy. The arms of the r in the word nf{r} are not altogether certain in the photograph. There is part of a cartouche visible in the photograph.

Commentary:
The beginning of the inscription is damaged. No initial l is visible and the first letter read is a circle but no crossbar is visible. The first letterof the second name is a different shape to the previous h in the text and it seems unlikely it should be read as a such. It is a short straight line with a horizontal line sticking out. It could be a d or possibly a ẓ in the Hismaic form of that letter. The third letter of the name is a line with a hook. The previous l does not have a hook and it seems most likely the letter should be read as a r.

One prong of the second ʾ is doubtful. The end of the second name is difficult to interpret. There is a dot near the tail of the y which is read as a n by TNSSMAS and then there is a curve which does not seem to closed in the photograph with a dot inside it. Commentary:
The first y is not legible in the photograph although it appears in the copy. The last part is very doubtful but the photograph suggests the penultimate letter should be read as an ʿ rather than a n and the letter before that in the copy looks more like a r. The reading of the first letter of the second name is doubtful. The name Mʿy is unattested in North Arabian though Mʿyʾ is found once in Palmyrene (Stark 1971: 34 95) and cf. the name Māʿai in Nehemiah 12: 36.

The second latter is rather large and it is possible that it should be read g. The last two letters of the second name are very doubtful. There might be a ṣ with no spine and a dot for the loop after the ḥ and it is possible that there is a y following it although its shape would be more accurately represented in ThNS than in ThNSSMAS. It seems most likely that the second letter of the patronym should be read as a b as it is very similar to the other b's in the text. The next letter is doubtful. There is a deeply cut curve which is not closed and there are possible traces of a shallow line forming it into a d.

Apparatus Criticus:
ThNSSMAS 16: l rbq bn nms[1] w bn hnʾ {h-} hdw ThNS 6.2: l rbq bn mtw bn hnʾ (h-) hdw

Commentary:
The second letter is more like a b and the third is larger and presumably a r. From the photograph it seems clear that the letter after the second n is a y and then there appears to be a short line which is probably an l as the initial l is quite short. The following letter might be an ʾ but one prong is uncertain and then there appears to be a ṣ without a spine although one line is doubtful and it is possible it should be read as a y. The following two letters are only partially in the photograph and the w read by the publications does not appear to be there at all. The first of the partial letters has loop and a line and it might be a y or a ṯ it is unlikely to be a ṣ if the reading of a spineless ṣ is correct. The next letter is probably a d although part of the line is missing.

ThNSSMAS 19: "ʿbd{w}d" for "ʿbdwd" ThNSMS 3: l ʿbdwd bn ḫlf bn s[1]fr bn zdt

Commentary:
The reading of the first name is clear. The first letter of the third name is written on a curve in the direction of the text and it is rather ambiguous as to whether it should be read as a z or a s[1]. The next letter is a f and the following letter is almost certainly a b judging by the other b's in the text and the shape of the r in ThSaf 18. Both zfb and sfb would be difficult to explain as names and it seems possible that the b is dittography which the author did not erase when he decided it would be better to write the b with the following n slightly above the end of ThSaf 18.

l lʿṯm bn bgt {b}{n} s^{1}----q

By Lʿṯm son of Bgt {son of} S^{1}----q

Apparatus Criticus:
ThNSSMAS: l ʿḍm bn rṯh; p. 111: l ʿn h- {g}{m}{l} written near the inscription. ThNSM.III 3.1: l ʿḍm bn rṯh; comm. p. 267 n. 33: maybe read as Thamudic "l s^{1}ʿṯm bn bgt"; p. 267 n. 34: l ʿn h- {g}{m}{l} written near the inscription.

Commentary:
It seems most likely that this inscription should be read as Hismaic accordingly the grid sign is read as a ṯ and the line with loops at either end is read as a g. The second bn is doubtful as the b is very small and the n carelessly inscribed. The s^{1} and q are much larger than the other letters of the text and there is rather a large space in between them. Both the editions mention further letters near the inscription but these are difficult to read from the photograph see ThSaf 51.1

Commentary:
It is possible the beginning of the inscription is missing as appears to be the case with ThSaf 51.2-3 and the first letter should be read as a n. The letters read as b and q by the editions are very doubtful and the q is read by the SD in ThSaf 51 and the t in ThSaf 51.3.

Commentary:
The fourth letter is damaged and although the damage is in the shape of an ʾ it is possible the letter should be read as a r or possibly a l. The second letter of the second name could be a r and the second letter of the third name is a slightly wavy line and it is possible it should be read as a s^{2} or a f. These letters are read by Theeb as the last part of ThSaf 54 but it seems most likely that they are part of another inscription the beginning of which has been lost because the rock is broken. The prayer at the end is written on another edge of the rock some distance from the rest of the text and it is possible that it does not belong here.

Commentary:
The reading of the first name is very difficult. The second l is a very long line and the letter read as a m is facing away from the direction of the text. The second letter of the second name is most likely a ḏ although the fork is rather damaged.The letters between the first w and possible b are damaged but traces are visible. Commentary:
This text is direct hammered in broad letters.

Provenance:
Wādī Gharah, ridge north of Ǧisr Umm Rāmiḥ, Rif Dimašq, Syria
The inscriptions were found on the ridge N. of the ǧisr (a simple causeway over which the water flows when the wadi is in flood), on the gently sloping right bank of the Wādī Gharah, which is not very deep at this point. There are a number of graves and cairns (one with two "columns" of stones), near some of which inscriptions were found. C, following Dunand, divides these inscriptions into those from "the right bank of Wādī al-Ghara" (C 189-247) and those from "the right bank of Wādī Ghara near the bridge" (C 248-291). We discovered texts from both groups within the same small area on the right bank just upstream of the bridge.

l mfʿt bn ʾḥ w h dṯn s^1q -n mṣlmḏwlmh

By Mfʿt son of ʾḥ and O Dṯn send rain on me mṣlmḏwlmh

Commentary:
This inscription is difficult to interpret. S^1q could possibly be related to the imperative of Arabic saqā-hu "He [God] sent rain to him" (Lane 1384c), but -n as the first person singular/plural enclitic pronoun would be very unusual. For the rest we are unable to offer a convincing interpretation. The deity dṯn is known in Safaitic from LP 1097 (as reread in OCIANA from a new photograph) and in Thamudic B (HU 657, 727, JSTham 258, 262, HE 27, WHI 51, 55, 65, 66, 69, 77, 80+81, 82, 90, 91) and Thamudic C (HU 235, 388, 618). It is obviously different from the local deity ʾlt dṯn which is found in Safaitic in C 994, 1292, 2446, and 2984, where dṯn represents a place name, probably somewhere close to, or within, the Ruḥbāh in southern Syria. For a discussion see Macdonald, Al Muʾazzin & Nehmé 1996: 474–476.

WH 15

l ḫṭs¹t bn s¹krn bn grmʾl w wgm ʿl- ʾbgr ḏ- ʾl ḍf s¹nt ngy whbʾl hdy

By Ḫṭs¹t son of S¹krn son of Grmʾl and he grieved for ʾbgr of the lineage of Ḍf the year that Whbʾl the leader (?) escaped

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: translation of s¹nt ngy whbʾl hdy "the year Whbʾl rescued Hdy"

Al-Jallad translation: By Ḫṭs¹t son of S¹krn son of Grmʾl and he grieved for ʾbgr of the lineage Ḍf the year Whbʾl was announced commander.

Commentary:
Safaitic hdy has been tentatively translated as "leader", to be connected with the Arabic root hdy "to guide." It occurs in similar contexts in KRS 25; KRS 303; KRS 995; KRS 1024; KRS 1086; WH 575; WH 1859, etc. One difficulty with this interpretation is that the word lacks definite concord with its antecedent; in other words, the article is missing. We should expect h- hdy rather than simply hdy. Perhaps this suggests the title was lexicalized without the article, but more evidence is required before this position can be accepted.

Commentary:
The second letter looks like a g but cf. the m of wgm. The first letter of ʾbgr is written h, whbʾl is written dbhl, and hdy is written ʾdy. See commentary of WH 15 on the translation of hdy/ʾdy.

By Rhḍ son of Ḥy son of Rhḍ of the lineage of Ḍf {and} {he grieved} for {ʾbgr} of the lineage of Ḍf

Commentary:
The spelling of ʾbgr as (b)[g]r following the preposition ʿl may suggest that the glottal stop was weakened in this context: *ʿalā ʾabgar > *ʿalā-bgar. The g looks more like a w but this may be an error on the part of the copyist.

By ʾbġḍ son of Mʿn and he suffered while sleeping

Apparatus Criticus:
WH 22: translation of nm as "lice", in connection with Arabic namʾ, lice.

Commentary:
The penultimate letter is clearly n on the photograph despite a small circular abrasion at one end. [MCAM] WH's interpretation of nm is unconvincing, as there is no evidence for the general loss of the glottal stop in Safaitic. Instead, it might be better to interpret it as an adverbial accusative of the root nwm, "to sleep, rest, die," probably *baʾis¹a nawm.

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: This spacious pasture belongs to S²rb son of ʾḥbb son of Ns²wn

Commentary:
M.C.A. Macdonald (Burial between the Desert and the Sown, Damaszener Mitteilungen 15 2006:294-295) argues against the notion of the ownership of immovable property in desert societies. The SD translation renders the phase "h- rʿy h- rḥb" as a locative expression, which could, in theory, continue the Proto-Semitic locative case *-um, reflexes of which are found in the Classical Arabic prepositions baʿdu 'yet', etc. Given the limitations of the orthography, this suggestion is impossible to prove at this point.

l mhbt bn {ḥ}yn

By Mhbt bn {Ḥyn}

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: {b}yn for {ḥ}yn

Commentary:
The fourth letter is identical in shape to the b of bn. A dot attached to its back (making it look like a s[1]) is of a different texture to the rest of the letter and is probably accidental. The name mhbt is found in another (unpublished) text from the H4 area. The middle stroke of the ḥ is shorter than the other two, is off centre, and protrudes beyond the back. At first sight it is tempting to read the name as ʿbyn but this does not explain the middle stroke in the letter. [MCAM].

By Rġd son of Mfny son of Rmzn son of Nʿmn son of Whb and he camped at this meadow in the season of the later rains and he was on the look out for the troop of horsemen so O Bʿls[1]my [grant] security!

Apparatus Criticus:

SadF p. 46: w ḫrṣ h- ḫl - "and he dressed the wound of H̱l" (wa ʿamal jarḥan l h- ḫl (ka-ʿamal ʿilāj¡)); or "he offered h- ḫl" (wa qaddama h- ḫl).

Horse is widely attested in Safaitic as frs[1]. H̱l probably refers more specifically to horsemen, as a collective noun. This would make more sense given the context of the inscription.

l wʿy bn bny bn ns²ʿl w h ylt nqʾt l- ḏ yʿwr h- s¹fr

By Wʿy son of Bny son of Ns²ʿl and O Ylt nqʾt to him who effaces this inscription

Commentary:
The meaning of nqʾt is uncertain. WH connect it with Classical Arabic najʾat "evil eye" but there are no other instances of Arabic /j/ corresponding to Safaitic /q/. Rodinson (Arabica 6, 1959, pp.217-218) connects it with Akkadian naqū/neqū 'to pour out libations to the dead', 'to scatter dust on the head as a sign of mourning', but this hardly seems to fit the present context. WH 62

l ḫrʿt bn wqr w wgm ʿl- ḥbb

By Ḫrʿt son of Wqr and he grieved for Ḥbb

Apparatus Criticus:

WH: "and he grieved for a loved one"

Commentary:
Here, ḥbb is either an undefined noun "a loved one" or a personal name (cf. Arabic Ḥabīb). In other texts, we find wgm ʿl ḥbb -h "he mourned for his beloved" or ḥbb f ḥbb "one loved one after another" , in which case ḥbb is clearly a noun. In the present text, however, it seems unlikely that the author would be vague about the person he was grieving for (by leaving the noun indefinite), especially given the vast number of texts in which the person(s) grieved for is/are named. Thus, it seems more probable that ḥbb is a personal name. [MCAM]

Commentary:
In Classical Arabic the root Ḏ-K-R can be used of anything "hard, tough, severe, difficult", etc. and in this text there is no indication of what it refers to. The expression b- ḏkr occurs in a number of Safaitic texts but so far not in contexts where the meaning is absolutely clear.

l rm----{ẖ}lm----yṯʿ w ḥll nʿ

By Rm ---- {H̱lm} ---- Yṯʿ and he camped nʿ ----

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: ḥnn "and show pity" for ḥll

Commentary:
WH reads the verb in this inscription as an imperative. It is more likely a third person singular as imperatives usually follow a subject introduced by the vocative h-. Moreover, the final two strokes of this word are rather elongated, virtually identical in length to the /l/ in {ẖ}lm, suggesting that we should read the verb as ḥll. The expression" PN and he camped X" is very common while "PN and he showed mercy X" is unknown.

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: mʿll for mʿly; "O Rḍy, avenge [him]

Commentary:
WH take "nqm" as an imperative verb "avenge!", but the absence of a pronominal suffix makes this interpretation unlikely. It is more likely a nominal direct object of a gapped verb (see Wright vol II, p.72). the third l of the inscription is clearly a y on the photograph.

By ʿmrt son of ʿbdy son of Klb and he was in need of [divine] favour

Apparatus Criticus:
WH 81: Translation of ḍrk rḍy "...and he is destitute, Rḍy"

Commentary:
WH connect the verb "ḍrk" with Arabic ḍaruka "to be needy". The problem with this interpretation is that it does not account for the name of the deity Rḍy, which appears to be disconnected from the rest of the inscription. The Hebrew cognate of Arabic ḍrk, ṣārak "have need of", is a better semantic match for the Safaitic. Rḍy, then, should be read as the noun meaning "favour" rather than as the name of the deity. Rḍy, "[divine] favour" in invocations, is very common in Dadanitic.

l s¹lm bn ẓʿn

By S¹lm son of Ẓʿn

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: bs¹lm for s¹lm

Commentary:

Underneath the s^1 is a curved line that resembles half of an s^1. It is much to wide to justify WH's interpretation of it as a b, and its position casts further doubt on their reading. The most likely explanation is that the author felt that he began his s^1 too low, and then started over again a bit higher. There is a stray b above the inscription followed by four dots.

It is difficult to justify the loop on the final letter of the second name. The letter preceding it, {l}, has a similar loop, but reading it as y would produce the unattested name ʿyy. On the other hand, it is possible to read both as l, producing the name ʿll.

WH 128

l ẓnʾl bn rgl w wḥd ġzz

By Ẓnʾl son of Rgl and he was alone while raiding

Commentary:
The syntax of this inscription suggests that we should take wḥd as a verb. WH connect it to Classical Arabic waḥada/waḥuda 'to be alone'. In this case, it is unlikely that ġzz is also a verb, as serial suffix conjugation constructions are unknown. Instead, we read ġzz as a verbal noun, 'raiding', functioning as a circumstantial accusative.

l qny f h lt qbl l- ʾhl s¹lm f nngy

By Qny so O Lt [grant] acceptance to the family of S[1]lm so that we may be saved

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: "...and let us escape"

Commentary:
The phrase qbl l ʾhl can be interpreted in two ways: (1) qbl l- ʾhl, where the second l is a dative preposition or (2) as the reduplicated form, qbll. Qbll is common in Safaitic, and should probably be connected to Classical Arabic iqballa, iqbilāl. The reduplicated form can take a direct object, MKWS 8: w s[1]lm w qbll ḏ ʾḥbb, or govern a prepositional phrase, AbNSJ 1: w s[1]lm w qbll l- ḏ ʾḥb, with no apparent difference in meaning. It might also be the case that instances without the overt expression of the dative simply reflect assimilation with the final l of qbll. The verb nngy is likely the passive of the subjunctive, nungaya. The use of the subjunctive following the conjunction f- expresses the result or effect of the preceding clause, which must have an imperative, wish, or something equivalent in meaning, e.g.: Classical Arabic iġfir lī yā rabbi fa-ʾadḫula al-ǧannata 'pardon me, O my Lord, so that I may enter Paradise' (Wright, Ar. Gr., vol. II §15.d). This explanation is also more phonologically satisfying, since the final y requires an original word final triphthong. WH's reading suggests that the verb was a jussive, which would have either terminated in a short vowel or a diphthong, both of which would not show up in the orthography.

By Rmh {son of} {Whb}

Apparatus Criticus:
WH 136: whblh for {w}hb

Commentary:
On the photograph, it looks as though the n of bn has been lost in the damage to the following letter. WH read the second name as whblh however, the marks they read as lh are non-descript hammerings above the second b, whereas there is plenty of room for the text to have continued in a straight horizontal line after the b. On the photograph, there are other faintly scratched texts which cannot be read with any certainty. [MCAM]

By Flṭt son of Tm son of ʾs¹ḫr of the lineage of Rfʾt and he passed through ... so he was pleased

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: "...He passed quickly through the new growth (which) he ate and was satisfied (or through ha-ʾfls¹)

Commentary:
WH's interpretation of ʾf as 'new growth' comes from comparison with the Classical Arabic expressions, ʾanf al-maṭar 'the first vegetation produced by rain' and ʾanf al-marʿā 'the first of the herbage or pasture', with the assimilation of the /n/ in Safaitic. Since /ls¹/ can be connected to Classical Arabic lassa 'to eat, graze', one could be tempted to interpret the two words as constituting a construct chain, ʾf-ls¹ 'first pasture (?)'. The definite article on the first term, however, makes this unlikely. The reading of ls¹ as a verb 'to eat, graze' is also difficult from a syntactic point of view, as we would expect either a conjunction or relative pronoun to connect it with the rest of the sentence. A close inspection of the photograph reveals that there is an unread ṯ between the third ʾ and the following f. This produces the rather awkward sequence ʾṯfls¹. The length (5 consonants) and the final s¹ could suggest that it is an attempt to approximate a Greco-Roman personal name or toponym, but which one exactly is unclear.

WH 161

l frhz bn kmd w ṭrd mn ḥrn f rʿy kll ʾrḍ

By Frhz son of Kmd and he was driven (out) of (the) Ḥrn so he pastured in every region

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: Translation of narrative "He drove [camels] from the Ḥaurān and pastured [them] in every region."
MNH p. 340: w ṭrd mn- ḥrn f rʿy kll ʾrḍ - and he was driven away from the Ḥawrān and so pastured in every region; p. 342 on being driven from the Ḥawrān.

Commentary:
The meaning of kll is 'each, every' when governing an singular indefinite noun (Wright, Ar. Gr., Vol. II §82.d). WH reading of ṭrd as an active verb with a gapped object is unlikely. While the gapping of verbs is common, gapped objects are far rarer, and, aside from this ambiguous case, unknown with the verb ṭrd (see KhBG 8; KhBG 257; KhBG 403; WH 3049; BTH 228; LP 732). Thus, we take ṭrd as a passive verb, 'was driven (out)'. The same double meaning, to drive animals and to drive away, occurs in Arabic. This would also explain why the author had to pasture in other regions.

WH: translation of bly "tomb"

Commentary:
A "baliyya" was a particular form of grave where the deceased's camel was trussed and/or hamstrung and left to die either beside the grave or in a pit next to it, to provide the dead man with a suitable mount in the afterlife. Such graves have been found in southern Jordan (where a Nabataean inscription actually specifies that it was a baliyya) and in eastern Arabia. [MCAM]

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: offer no translation of "...ʿlm mqdm nʾbn"

Commentary:
We translate /ʿlmmqdmnʾbn/ as an epithet of Rḍw similar to the ʿālim-epithets of Allāh, Q35:38 ʿālimu ġaybi l-samawāti wal-ʾarḍi 'all-knowing of the unseen of the heavens and the earth'; Q59:22 ʿālimu l-ġaybi wal-šahādati 'all-knowing of the unseen and seen'. We connect nʾb to the Classical Arabic verb ʾanāba, 'to repent, to draw close' (ʾanāba ʾilā ʾallāh). In this case, nʾbn is likely a participial form, perhaps *nāʾib, with a sound masculine plural suffix. The first /m/ of WH's mqdm is better read as a relative pronoun, *mā, followed by the verb qdm, which, in the D-stem, means 'to offer up, present'. This epithet invites comparison with Qurʾānic verses in which Allāh affirms that he knows who indeed is a hypocrite and who is sincere, e.g.: Q4:63 ʾulāʾika l-laḏīna yaʿlamu llāhu mā fī qulūbihim...'and those are the ones of whom Allah knows what is in their hearts'.

l kmd bn s²{k}r bn [n]ṣrʾl bn zbdy w wgd ʾṯr kmd f ngʿ

By Kmd son of {S²kr} son of {Nṣrʾl} son of Zbdy and he found the inscription of Kmd and suffered

Commentary:
There are two possible etymologies for ngʿ. The first connects it with Ethiopic, nagwʿa 'shout, be broken, break' and Hebrew, nāgaʿ 'touch, hurt', which has a niphal form, meaning 'to be stricken, defeated in battle', and a puʿal, meaning 'to be stricken by diseases' (BDB, p.619). The second connects it with Arabic wağiʿa 'suffer pain, agony (physical and emotional)'. The verb nağaʿa in Arabic means 'to be useful', which hardly fits this context. Van den Branden (al-Machriq 63 [1969], p.738, n.1) interprets ngʿ as the VII form, the n-stem, of wağaʿa. WH point out that there are no I-w n-stem verbs in Arabic and claim that the same is probably true for Safaitic. There is, in fact, no reason to assume that this restriction held in Safaitic, as I-w n-stem verbs are common elsewhere in Semitic, including many Arabic dialects. In fact, the n-stem of the verb wgʿ fits nicely in the context of this inscription. The proto-Central Semitic form would have been *nawgaʿa (cf. Hb. nōlaḏ 'was born' < *nawlada), which would appear in Safaitic orthography as ngʿ.

WH: "He fought against ḤRT in revenge for the she-camel [taken] from Maʿn

Commentary:
WH connect tbl with Arabic tabl 'vengeance', but ṯ'r or qṣṣ are more frequent in Safaitic. Tbl should instead be connected to the Akkadian verb wabālum 'to bring, carry'. It is presumably the infinitive of the D-stem, wabbala > tawbīl. The word 'ibil 'dromedary' might be derived in some way from this root. WH take Ḥrt as the name of a tribe on the basis of its appearance with a nisba ending in WH 424, but the nisba ending could equally suggest that it is a toponym.

By Nwl son of ʾml and O Rḍw grant to the petitioner his request

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: nfḥt for nf{ḍ}t; translation of nfḥt "his gift"

Commentary:
The photograph reveals that the third to last letter is in fact a ḍ; the two horizontal lines are clear and the left vertical intersecting line is also clear. The right vertical line is worn, but can still be made out. The root nfḍ in Arabic has the sense of shaking or knocking, and can refer to a range of things, from the fallen fruit of the tree to a women having many children (Lane 2832). The context of this inscription makes it clear that nfḍt refers to the object of the petitioner's request, but anything more exact is impossible to determine. Our current interpretation also differs from WH's reading in terms of syntax. WH take s¹ʾl nf{ḥ}t -h [sic] as a genitive construction and l- -h as the dative preposition with a clitic 3ms pronoun. We think it makes more sense to regard h- s¹ʾl as a definite noun, the dative object of whb, as it is difficult to make sense of what an alleged "petition of his request" should mean. The suffix pronoun on the final word also rules out interpretations that involve general petitions for things, such as petitions for offspring, agricultural produce, etc.

By Flg son of Ḥmgt and O Yṯʿ deliver him from him who {possesses} (?) evil

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: ...mḏfr sʾ for m- ḏ {k}f sʾ; translation "an evil stench"

Commentary:
What WH take as an f looks more like a k on the photograph, but admittedly one reminiscent of Thamudic B. WH's r is in fact the lower half of an f, the upper half of which is damaged but easily made out from on the photo. Kf is attested in KRS 1866, with the meaning of "to overturn". This meaning does not fit the current context, as it would seem odd for the author to request deliverance from "the overturner". Rather, we would connect kf with palm, cf. Arabic kaff, and treat the phrase idiomatically as one who has evil in his hand, i.e., one who possesses evil.

Provenance:

WH 215

ḫzwyyh

Ḫzwyyh

Commentary:
If this is indeed a name, it is previously unattested in Safaitic. The word lends itself to many interpretations. One is tempted to connect the first component to Hebrew and Aramaic ḥāzā, "to see", but the occurrence of Arabic ḥazā "to see with inner vision, of an astrologer", complicates the matter, as Safaitic ḫ does not correspond regularly with Arabic ḥ. Given the root's restricted sense in Arabic, however, it could very well be a borrowing from Aramaic, which could explain the aberrant correspondence. The final two letters could be the theophoric element yāhū. Indeed, names such as ḥazāyā (Neh 11:5); ḥazīʾel (2 Kings 8:8,13,16) etc. occur in the Bible. The derivation of a putative ḥzwy is difficult to explain. The y may be dittography, in which case, ḫzw could be a suffix conjugation verb or a participle.

WH 217

l mtl bn ḫrʿt bn wqr nbṭ

By Mtl son of Ḫrʿt son of Wqr well-digger

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: translation of nbṭ, "he dug down to water"

Commentary:
WH correctly connect nbṭ with Arabic, meaning "to dig down to water, or to dig a well", but their interpretation of the word as a finite verb is unsatisfactory. In constructions such as these, Safaitic introduces the narrative with a conjunction, either w or f. The absence of such here suggests to me that the word is part of the name, perhaps a faʿʿāl form indicating profession, nabbāṭ "well-digger". One occasionally finds frs^{1} "horseman" in the same position.

WH 238

l ʿḏ bn ʿḏ bn ġṯ w mṭy wḥdy m- ḥrn f h s²ʿhqm s¹lm

By ʿḏ son of ʿḏ son of Ġṯ and he journeyed alone from the Ḥrn so O S²ʿhqm [grant] security

Apparatus Criticus:
MNH p. 340: w mṭy wḥd{h} m- ḥrn f h s²ʿhqm s¹lm - and he travelled in haste from the Ḥawrān by himself and so O s²ʿhqm [grant] security; p. 342: on going to and fro from the Ḥawrān.
WH: parse wḥdy as w ḥdy, translation of ḥdy as "to urge (camels) forward by singing".

Commentary:
We find MNH's interpretation of wḥdy as an adverb meaning "alone, by himself" more convincing than WH's translation. Wḥdy probably consists of the nisba ending -iyy attached to the base wḥd "one". It is, however, unclear if a vowel, -a or -ā, follows this suffix. Note that if this interpretation is correct, it differs significantly from its Classical Arabic equivalent, waḥda-hu "by himself".

WH 256.1

l ʾbrd bn tdʿ

By ʾbrd son of Tdʿ

Commentary:
There is a lightly scratched vertical line following the first t which intersects with its horizontal line. If this mark was intentional, it would appear that there are two consecutive t's following n. This interpretation is tempting as it would render the second word bnt "daughter" rather than bn. Etymological bint- is, as far as I know, always spelled in Safaitic as bt, with the assimilation of the t, so the preservation of etymological n might support the view that the line in question is a stray mark.

WH 273

l fk{r}  bn {f}{l}ṭ{ṭ}

By {Fkr} {son of} {Flṭṭ}

Commentary:
The first b is most likely dittography. The inscription concludes with a lightly scratched ṭ, which if not dittography, may be the common suffix -t, which has then shifted to ṭ (assimilation) under the influence of the previous consonant. The spread of emphasis is not a regularly observed phenomenon in Safaitic.

Commentary:
Final letter has only a single curve, unlike the double curve of the preceeding letter, but is also unlike the bs and rs in the text. The name nrs^{1}m{r} is previously unattested. Its length might suggest that it is a compound of some sort, but more is unclear.

WH 300

l ʾs^{1} bn ẖfyt h- bkrt w ḥwb h- mrʾt

The she-camel is by ʾs^{1} son of H̱yft and he fornicated with this woman

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: Translation of ḥwb "he loved"

Commentary:
In most cases, ḥwb is clearly one of the terms for grieving in Safaitic, but both the semantic and syntax context (the object is not introduced by a preposition) make it such an interpretation here difficult. WH connect it to Arabic ḥbb "to love", but without any phonological justification. Another sense of ḥwb is to "sin" or "commit a sin", cf. Arabic ḥāba (Lane 662). In this context, it most likely refers to illicit sexual relations. A dancing woman, perhaps a representation of the author's sexual partner, accompanies the inscription. Curiously, no representation of a she-camel accompanies the inscription.

By Ṣb son of Hws^{1}r

Commentary:
On the photograph and facsimile (pl. 14) but not read by WH who however refer to the text they call 604 as 604a on p. 31. Beeston (BRWH p. 134) suggests calling the unread text 604 and the read one 604a. However this would add confusion so it seems simpler to call the one WH read 604a (as on p. 31) and the unread one as 604b. Beeston reads the first name in 604b as ḥbb which is impossible.

WH 641.1

l fty bn rwḍ w byt b- h- ʾrḍ wrḫ b-bql w flṭ -h m- lḥy{n} h- s¹nt

By Fty son of Rwḍ and he spent the night in this fertile land and lived at ease amidst spring vegetation and deliver him from Lḥyn this year.

Apparatus Criticus:
WH 641.1: "he pitched a tent in this land and lived at ease amidst spring vegetation. [O god], deliver him from moving away this year"

{r}ḥyl for lḥy{n}

Commentary:
L r and n are carefully distinguished in this text. L always has a right-angled hook at one end; r is always a shallow curve with no hooks; and n is a straight line with no hooks. The reading must therefore be b- bql and m- lḥyn even though the n is rather long. ʾrḍ here probably means "land that becomes luxuriant in herbage" cf Arabic ʾarīḍ (Lane 49a) For rḫ see WH 597. No deity is invoked in the prayer for deliverance. Since elsewhere (BRenv A2, B1), the tribe of Liḥyān is referred to as ʾl lḥyn (i.e. "the lineage group of Lḥyn") and lḥyn can be a personal name in Safaitic, it seems likely that lḥyn in this inscription is a person rather than a group.

WH 1273

l dʿṯt bn lġft bn hknf bn mqtl bn nbʾt w wgd s¹fr ʿm -h f wgm

By Dʿṯt son of Lġft son of Hknf son of Mqtl son of Nbʾt and he found the inscription of his grandfather and he grieved [for him]

Commentary:
L and n are very clearly distinguished in this text with many of the l's being of exceptional length. Although WH read the second name as nġft comparison of the first letter with the n of bn shows that it must be a l. The fifth name lġft is unattested and could be a dialectal variant of nġft. This is supported by the fifth name where again comparison with the n of the preceding bn shows that it must be nbʾt in place of the usual lbʾt.

l ḫls^{1ʿ} bn bḥgrh

By Ḫls^{1ʿ} son of Bḥgrh

Commentary:

The third and penultimate letters have a clear curve at the top which the lām auctoris does not. They are therefore probably to be read as r. Rare names with clear final ʿ do occur (e.g qdmʿ in MSTJ 1) so it may not be "an unintentional mark" as suggested by WH

WH 1475

l <<>>{k}l<<>>b (b)n ṯfrn

By {Klb} son of Ṭfrn

Commentary:
Vandalised by additions. The dots are probably forms of "joining" the letters as is the line between the lām auctoris and the next letter. This may have been a k one bar of which was extended into a circle. We suggest that the b of bn was truned into a w. Since the l's are not hooked the penultimate letter must be a r.

WH 1849

l whblh bn ẓnʾl bn whblh bn mlk w bny l- hnʾ h- s¹trt w qṣṣ frs¹ h- ms¹ty s¹nt bḫr ʾl ḍf f h lt s¹lm w ʿwd b- h- ms¹rt mʾt frs¹

By Whblh son of Ẓnʾl son of Whblh son of Mlk and he built the shelter for Hnʾ and he tracked a horseman to the MS¹TY the year the tribe of Ḍf was cut to pieces. And, Lt [grant] security and there returned into the camp a hundred horses

Apparatus Criticus:
MNH p. 347: on Greek inscription; n. 288: might be the father of the author in WH 1861.

Commentary:
A study of the original stone shows that the fourth name is mlk (rather than mll as read by WH) and indeed it is shown as such on WH's facsimile (Pl. 70). The word bḫr is new. WH read it as btr but this is impossible since the text is very carefully written with the height of the letters maintained at a constant level and a clear distinction preserved between signs of the same form but different sizes (g/ʿ l/n ḫ/t). The letter in question is far larger than any of the t's in the inscription and can only be a ḫ. The meaning however is obscure.

Unspecified site, unspecified region, unspecified country.

WH 1850

By Ḫṭs¹t son of S¹krn son of Grmʾl and he migrated to the inner desert the year of Hnʾ and so O Lt [grant] security

Commentary:
Unfortunately the inscription was inked in white before it was photographed and this has obscured the reading. The last two letters of the second name which were not inked can be seen on the photograph. The sign before ʾs^{2}rq which WH read as f is inaccurately represented on their facsimile and is probably a w though there are some unexplained additional lines around the letter.

Provenance:
Unspecified site, unspecified region, unspecified country.

By S^{2}bʿn son of Ḥs^{1}l and he found the rocks (i.e. cairn) of Qḥs^2 and so he was miserable overshadowed (with grief)

Apparatus Criticus:
MST p. 6 n. 26: wqʿ refers to the writing itself

Commentary:
Unfortunately the letters have been covered with white ink sometimes obscuring their true shape. This particularly true of the end of the case where the whole of mẓll can be seen on the stone although the m has been transformed into ll by the ink.

WH 1855

l mṣrm bn nzl bn mṣrm w ʾs²rq b- ms¹rt hnʾ mdbr

By Mṣrm son of Mṣrm and he migrated to the encampment of Hnʾ in the inner desert

Commentary:
On the photograph it is clear that the second name is nzl not ntn (as read by WH). The line before ms¹rt has a definite curve at one end like the b's of the bn's whereas the lām auctoris and the l of nzl are straight. It must therefore be a b. The supposed l before mdbr is a small scratch above the foot of the ʾ of hnʾ. Mdbr must represent the equivalent of what in Standard Arabic would be an adverbial accusative.

l ʾnʿm bn s²hm bn ġṯ w bny h- s¹trt l- hnʾ hdy s¹nt mṣr ʾl whbʾl l- gr{s²}

By ʾnʿm son of S²hm son of Ġṯ and he [helped] build the fortified encampment for Hnʾ the commander the year of the expeditionary force of ʾl Whbʾl to Gerasa.

Apparatus Criticus:
SIAM p. 196: first name ʾnʿm.

Commentary:
Both ʾnʿm and ġṯ are clear on the stone. It is possible that s¹trt represents some form of military structure if hdy is the leader of a mliitary unit. It is also tempting to connect mṣr with the South Arabian mṣr ʿexpeditionary forceʾ — from the root ṣyr — (cf. JRWH p. 500). If this is so [and other instances of mṣr need to be checked] the mṣr ʾl whbʾl would presumably a unit drawn from the ʾl whbʾl comparable to the ms¹rt ʾl ʿmrt in M .... Finally it is impossible to decide whether the more lightly scratched lower lines of the last letter are accidental in which case the sign is a f or intentional in which case it is a s². In the latter case the temptation to identify grs² as Gerasa/Jerash is almost irresistible. The translation offered above is based on all these hypotheses and can be no more than a tentative suggestion on which much more work would need to be done before publication.

l s¹krl bn {’}hl bn grm’l

By S¹krl son of {’hl} son of Grm’l

Commentary:
The fifth letter is far longer than n's of the bn's and must surely be a l. The first letter of the second name is almost certainly a ’ but a light scratch of a different texture to the rest of the letter crosses one of the forks. In view of the othertexts on this stone it is probable that this is extraneous to the letter. The letters of the last name have been incised with double strokes.

WH 1877

l s²{{l}}{b} bn fr

By {S²lb} son of Fr

Commentary:
On the photograph it appears that the third letter was originally a l identical to the lām auctoris. Across this a thicker semi-circle has been drawn making it into a ḏ. The fourth letter is not completely closed and may be a b. WH take th final letter as a k but this is because they join it to the ante-penultimate letter of 1878 whereas there is a clear space between the two. On the photograph a faint hook can be seen at its opposite end suggesting that it is a r.

By {Hb} son of Mkbl

Commentary:

The top of the second letter has been damaged and it is not certain whether it is a ʾ a ṣ or a h. The m of the second name has been filled in with careful pecking. The position of the k is curious. It does not seem to have been omitted and then inserted since there is space enough for it between the m and the b. On the other hand it is completely in the style of this text and is unlikely to belong to the end of 1877. On their facsimile WH omit the side-stroke and join it to the final lette rof 1877.

WH 1881

l ʿrs¹{y} bn grgrl

By {ʿrs¹y} son of Grgrl

Commentary:
Although the second name is bizarre it is clear on the photograph. In this name the fifth letter (a straight vertical line) is clearly differenciated from the second and fourth letters (straight vertical lines with a curve at the top). The fifth can only be a l which suggests that the second and fourth must be r's. The first three letters of the text are more crudely formed than the rest and this may account for the differences between on the one hand the lām auctoris and the r of ʿrs¹y and on the other the r's and l of the second name.

Unspecified site, unspecified region, unspecified country.

l ----{{l}}{w}{ḥ} bn m{{l}}{{r}}m

By {Lwḥ} son of {Mlrm}

Commentary:
Several letters have been altered and the second has been erased. It is possible that the third has been transformed from a l into a r and the bar of the w appears to have been hammered over though traces of it can still be seen. The following letter has been thoroughly hammered over but from the traces still visible it may have been a ḥ. In the patronym forks have been hammered over the bases of the second and third letters Neither can have been a b which the bn shows to have been much more squat. The first could have been a l similar to the lām auctoris in which case the third may have been a r.

By {Ḍhd} {son of} {Qmhr} B

Commentary:
Several letters have been tampered with but fortunately the additions stand out clearly from the original letters. The two h's have been turned into y's and the d into a q. WH 2004.1

l bnyt bn mḥm b{n} bdn bn ʿr bn ṣn bn ḥrm bn ʿwḏ b{n} gmʿs¹ h- nfs¹t

By Bnyt son of Mḥm {son of} Bdn son of ʿr son of Ṣn son of Ḥrm son of ʿwḏ {son of} Gmʿs¹ is the monument

Commentary:

WH's facsimile is very inaccurate. The 8th letter cannot be g as read by WH nor ġ since it is followed by ḥ (cf the ḥ of ḥrm). It can only be a m therefore. Each of the 3 m's in this text is of a quite different shape . The n of the second bn is larger than the others and is surmounted by a smallfork which is preumably accidental though it looks intentional. There is a wavy line to the left of the n of the final bn which is of a slightly different quality from the n.

WH 2035

l dʾy bn s²wkt w ḫwy(t) (h-) s²ʿrt

By Dʾy son of S²wkt and Sirius set but had brought no rain.

Commentary:
WH's interpretation seems unlikely. However NB in Arabic ḫawà and ḫawwà can mean (the stars) set aurorally and brought no rain (Lane 827/b) while al-©iʿrà is Sirius. There are 2 stars of this name called the sisters of Suhayl. However al-©iʿrà is said to rise around 27 June (EI sv a©-ṣiʿrà) or in the time of intense heat (Lane 1560 b-c) or rules for 40 nights in Jan/Feb in a©-©tāʾ (Musil Rwala p. 8). I cannot find whether the 2 stars with this name rise at opposite ends of the year. If so and Musil's statement is correct for one of them the statement in the inscription would be a complaint that winter had passed without bringing rain.

WH 2142

l m{f}ny bn tm w rʿy h- rġlt nwy

By Mfny son of Tm and he pastured the meadows while migrating

Commentary:
The third letter could also be a ġ but in that case it would be the mirror image of the later ġ. Rġlt is probably a plant either roġeyla (Atriplex dimorphostegia K.K.) the "raw stalks or tuberous growths" of which the Rwala eat (Musil Rwala 95) or roġol (Atriplex leucoclada Boiss) a perennial of the class of plants called ḥamẓ which make the best camel pasture (Musil Rwala p. 337-338). The diagonal line which seems to join the ġ to the l is probably accidental.

The third name is clearly ns^{2}d'l. The first letter of the fourth name could be a k but it is not certain whether or not the stroke to the side is part of the letter.The author originally wrote the fourth name {b}m omitting the h. Commentary:
The very light line across the second letter is almost certainly natural. The fourth letter is clearly a b (cf. the b's in the bn's) so the third must be a r. The apparent central line across the tenth letter is a small rideg on the stone. After the second bn the rest of the text is invisible on the photograph.

Provenance:
Unspecified site, unspecified region, unspecified country.

By Mġyr son of Ṣʿd son of S¹ḫr son of Mfny and he migrated to the inner desert and he found the inscription of {Mfny} and cried out because of heavy loss

Commentary:
There are some faint letters on the side of the stone immediately after the mf of the second mfny. WH omitted the m of the second mfny and their restoration [fm]ny is based on their reading of WH 953 where it is probably metathesis on the part of either the author or the copyist.

By {Qs^{1}y} son of Wd son of Ys^{2}kr son of ʿwd son of {Ys^{2}kr} and he was present [here] in the year of want

Commentary:
Although first letter of the fifth name is clearly ḏ on the copy the emendation seems justified not only because of the occurrence of ys^{2}kr already in the genealogy but because names with pre-fromative ḏ- are virtually unknown in Safaitic (the only example seems to be ḏ-myʿt in WH 154).

WH 2272.1

l bʿd bn ghmn

By Bʿd son of Ghmn

Commentary:
The same names are engraved three times in different techniques on the same face. WH treat them all as 2272. In the SD they are separated as WH 2272.1 2272.2 2272.3. Note in all three texts the difference between the lām auctoris which has a hook and the final letter which does not and which must therefore be a n even though in 2272.1 and 2272.2 it is somewhat longer than the n of the bn.

WH 2320

l ʾmz bn yṯʿ bn ʿ[n]ʾl w ʾdmʿ

By ʾmz son of Yṯʿ son of {ʿnʾl}. He plaited [his hair]

Commentary:
WH take the first letter of the third name as ʿ and the last sign in the text as g but on the copy they are of identical size. In view of WH 2321 it is likely that the third name should be read ʿnʾl the last sign must therefore be ʿ also. A number of common names are occasionally found with a final -ʿ (e.g. qdm qdmʿ in MSTJ 1). Either the inscription is by two people or the w should be emended to (bn).

WH 2637.2

---{s¹}d bn h{ʾ}r----

---{S¹d} son of {H'r}----

Commentary:
It looks as though the lower part of the penultimate letter is in a different technique from the upper part. On the other hand it is identical to the the h. One could read ʾ (taking both parts as intentional) or b (takingonly the upper part). However there is a clear fork at the bottom which it makes it unlikely to be a k. There are traces of another letter on the edge of the break.

By Ghr son of Hʾs[1] son of {ʾ}ṯ----{ʿ}ḏr

Apparatus Criticus:
WH 2638: ʾt[ʿ bn] ʿḏr fo {h}-----ḏr

Commentary:
There is a lightly scratched ṯ following the second ʾ, but there is an unusually large space separating the two letters. The last part of the inscription has been badly damaged. The third to last letter could be an ʿ, but it is so close to the damaged portion, one could also interpret it as a damage mark.

Apparatus Criticus:

Commentary:
The final part of this inscription is not clear on the photograph, so it is impossible to evaluate the copy. WH take ʾdr as ʾ- dr "this camping-place (?)", paralleling the common Safaitic phrase l- N h- dr, and interpret the initial ʾ as the article.

WH 2672

l ḥ{l}m

By {Ḥlm}

Commentary:
The author originally wrote ḥm. Upon realizing his error, he attempted to rub out the m and wrote an l over it. Four parallel lines, instead of the expected seven, follow the name, both of which are surrounded by a double line cartouche. Seven circles and a sun disk are to the right of the cartouche. A camel and a stick animal are also found on the same rock.

Provenance:
Cairn 35, unspecified region, unspecified country.

WH 2814

l ṯnyt bnt ḥr{m} ḥyḍt f h lt rwḥ w s¹lm

By Ṯnyt daughter of Ḥrm, a menstruating woman. O lt, [grant] relief and health.

Commentary:
WH read two letters wr immediately after the n of bnt and below the t and ḥr{m}. If this is correct (and the letters are unidentifiable on the photograph)it seems probable that the author originally forgot the t of bnt and inadvertently close the left hand side of the ḥ of ḥrm then noticing her mistake continued her text above. Note that the wr are in the direct natural line for the continuation of the text after bn.

By ʿbd son of {Yġṯ} of the {lineage of} Bs¹ʾ and he and his brother were announced [commander] of a party of near kinsmen the year the Nabataeans rebelled against the people of {Rome}, so may security come

Apparatus Criticus:
MANC p. 421b: the year the Nabataeans rebelled against the people of Rome MNH p. 331and n. 17: s¹nt mrdt nbṭ ʿl- ʾl rm - the year of the revolt of the Nabataeans against the ʾl Rm. MNBS 111 n. 68: s¹nt mrdt nbṭ ʿl- ʾl rm; on Knauf and texts mentioning conflicts between the Nabataeans and other peoples.

Commentary:
The f of mnfrt is clear and so Knauf's suggestion m nmrt is impossible. The r of mnfrt is different from those of mrdt and rm which are completely closed. There does not seem to be a l between the f and the ʾ at the end or between the ʾ and the s¹. The final f looks clear on the photograph and is followed by a deep hole in the rock.

WH 3049

l ʾrʿh[[]] bn wʿd h- dr w qyẓ ḥrt w ṭrd m- ḥwrn h- ḫl s¹nt s¹l

By ʾrʿh son of Wʿd was here and he spent the dry season in the ḥarra and he drove off (in a raid) the horses from the Ḥawrān the year (or time) of a flood

Apparatus Criticus:
MST 9 n. 53: w qyẓ ḥrt w ṭrd m- ḥwrn h- ḫl -and he spent the dry season in [the] Ḥarra and he drove the horses from [the] Ḥawræn. MNH p. 314 n. 72 p. 341 and n. 244: w qyẓ ḥrt w ṭrd m- ḥwrn h- ḫl - and he spent the dry season in the ḥarra and he drove off (in a raid) the horses from the Ḥawræn; the marks read as s¹nt s¹l are probably not letters; p. 342: on raiding in Ḥawræn from the ḥarra.

Commentary:
The author wrote a t at the end of the first name and then neatly scratched it over. This could be a sign of the beginnings of uncertainty as to how represent /tāʾ marbºṭa/ viz. by -t or by -h. Note also the /ḥwrn/ for the usual /ḥrn/ if this is what it is. There are definitely some very lightly scratched lines at the end of the text but whether they are letters reading s¹nt s¹l is somewhat doubtful.

WH 3071

l f{{g}}{{ʿ}} bn {{ʿ}}w{{ḏ}}

By {Fgʿ} son of {ʿwḏ}

Commentary:
The first two letters aligned with the third and are just visible on the photograph though they have been missed on the facsimile. The first two letters shown on the latter are in fact natural marks on the rock. The text has been heavily vandalised by the addition of lines to most of the letters. The third letter was probably a g which has been turned into a s¹ the two ʿ's have been truned into w's a thicker horizontal stroke has been added across the top of the n and a side-stroke added to the ḏ.

Commentary:
There is a thinly scratched ʾl before the lām auctoris which WH take with this text. However the technique is completely different and WH ignor the fact that there is a letter between their ʿrʾ (in fact the lām auctoris) and the f. WH 3256

l mn{{ʾ}}l {{b}}{{n}} mrt

By {Mnʾl} {son of} Mrt

Commentary:
The first name and the bn have been vandalised by the addition of ligatures and extra lines. The lām auctoris and the first m have been joined in two places. Both forks of the ʾ are just visible on the photograph though they have been hammered over. A line has been drawn through the b making it resemble a ḥ and its arms joined in a semi-circle enclosing the n. Pace WH no ʾ can be seen between the r and the t of the second name. A light scratch to the right of the t is not an ʾ.

WH 3289

l zd n kḥy w bdr h- ʾfmy m- ḥrn

MNH p. 341: w bdr h- ʾf ml m- ḥrn - and he hastened towards the new growth having become tired of the Ḥawrān. WH's translation; p. 342: on going from the Ḥawræn.

Commentary:
The central stroke of the fourth letter is identical in form to the rest of the letter but it is different from the ḥ of kḥy in that the central stroke does not project. It was presumably an error by the author for b. H- ʾfmy ʻthe Apamaeanʼ??

WH 3373

l bʾmrh bn gd h- {ẓ}{b}yt

By Bʾmrh son of Gd are the {gazelles}

Commentary:
The loop of the d (though not shown on the facsimile) can be seen on the photograph. The first two letters of the last word have rather odd shapes. They appear to be continuing the 90° stance of the letters in the text with the ẓ which usually stands with its open side at the bottom turned so that the open side is to the right and the b (partially obscured by a large dot) has its open side more or less pointing upwards.

Provenance:
Unspecified site, unspecified region, unspecified country.

WH 3374

l h[[]]ʾd bn ʿkyd

By {Hʾd} son of ʿkyd

Commentary:
The author originally wrote a ʿ after the h then scratched it out and wrote ʾ. This seems to have caused considerable confusion to previous editors. The ʿ is not shown on WH's facsimile (though there is a space where it should be) but is it included in their reading. They also emend the ʾ to ṣ although there is no justification for this since the ʾ is clear on the photograph. CSNS (p. 195) adds to the confusion by claiming that this ṣ is a restoration rather than an emendation and that the facsimile (and the entry in HIn p. 605) show the name as hʿd whereas in fact both show it as hʾd! The second name is clearly ʿkyd on the photograph though y and a d are more lightly scratched than the first two letters.

l ys¹lm bn lġyn w rʿy mdbr h- ms²ty f ṣyf h- gml

By Ys¹lm son of Lġyn and he pastured in the inner desert at the winter pasture, then he spent the early summer there till Gemini.

Apparatus Criticus:
MST p. 7 n. 35 p. 8: w rʿy mdbr h- ms²ty f ṣyf h- gml - " he pastured the desert of the winter quarters and then spent the early summer ". MNH p. 322 and n. 128: w rʿy mdbr h- ms²ty f ṣyf - he pastured the ḥamæd where he spent the winter and then remained there during the early summer.

Commentary:

WH 3531

---- bn {{y}}s¹lm {{b}}{{n}} ḥ----g

---- son of {Ys¹lm} {son of} Ḥ----G

Commentary:
WH read this as the continuation of 3532 but this is very unlikely since the latter is enclosed in a cartouche. The beginning of 3531 is hidden under earth and a stone. The text has been extensively altered. It seems likely that the upper circle of the third visible latter was added later. Unlike the lower one it has been drawn around the bottom of the stem rather than added onto its end. It therefore seems likely that the letter was originally a y. The next letter is a s¹ with a very lightly scratched line near it. WH took this a spart of the letter and read it as ḥ. The l and m of ys¹lm are clear. The shape of the following sign is suspicious with its flattened right-hand edge and it seems likely that it is a bn the letters of which have been joined and then a cross stroke added to make it into a w. The following sign is 90° ḥ with the bottom crossed by the line of the cartouche around 3532 and the final sign is clearly a g rather than two l's.What is between the ḥ and g is unclear on the photograph.

WH 3532

l qtl bn ṭrq

By Qtl son of Ṭrq

Commentary:
WH read WH 3531 as a continuation of this text. However 3532 is clearly enclosed in a cartouche and ends with ṭrq. What WH read as the lām auctoris is an extraneous line outside the cartouche and what they take to be the left-hand side of the 'm' is in fact the end of the cartouche the righ-hand side of the 'm' being the true lām auctoris. The r of ṭrq has small but clear hooks though these are not shown on the facsimile. All this can be seen on the photograph.

l mlkt b{n} {ḥ}y bn ḥl {{h-}} {{ṣ}}{{h}}b

By Mlkt {son of} {Ḥy} son of Ḥl is

Commentary:
The text has been much altered and the only the first name is certain. The seventh eighth and ninth letters are obscured by over-scratchings. The fourteenth letter seems to have been altered from a h to a ʾ by the addition of an extra heavier side-stroke. The next sign seems originally to have been a hooked l like that in mlkt but a heavy circle has been added at the other end of the stem and a lighter line joining the end of the hook back to the stem. By contrast the penultimate sign seems to have started off a h but the side strke was then scratched over to make it look like a r. However none of this can be certain.

The text has been tampered with. A horizontral has been added between two of the prongs of the ḥ. The b of bn has been turned into a m but the additional line is in a quite different technique to the original. WH 3635

l bhl bn ʾlz{ʿ} h- dr ʿm f ʿm

By Bhl son of {ʾlzʿ} was here year after year

Commentary:
The first fourth and eighth letters are identical very shallow curves and it is likely therefore that all three are l's. There is no trace of WH's supposed {ʾ} after the z but there is a faint circle which could be a ʿ. On WHs facsimile the text continues (as read above) after the second name though this is virtually invisible on the photograph and is ignored in WHs reading of this text.

Drawing only. NB most of the signs in the grid could be read as Safaitic letters but despite the attempts of HIn (ʾṭy p. 54) and JRWH (hġys¹r p. 510 read) to read them (as WH 3790a) it seems likely that they have magic signifciance and are intended to be read separately rather consecutively.

WH 3807

l dʾ(y) bn bs¹ʾ bn ʾs¹d bn gmr bn ʾḥs¹n bn ḥbk

By {Dʾy} son of Bs¹ʾ son of ʾs¹d son of Gmr son of ʾḥs¹n son of Ḥbk

Commentary:
WH have taken no account of the relative positions of the texts on the rock nor of the diferences in techniquewhich characterise them. WH 3807 is lightly scratched and after the fourth bn crosses a break in the rock. The last two names of this text are separated from the other texts on this second piece of rock by a thickly hammered enclosing-line. WH read two of the names (ʾmq bn gmr) from 3809 as the end of 3807 despite the fact that they are incised rather than scratched and are not aligned with the rest of 3807. They then combined the last two names of 3807 (ʾḥs¹n bn ḥbk) with the end of 3809 (bn ḥbk bn ʾmt bn ʾḥs¹n) to make a new text ʿ3897bʾ. See the commentary to WH 3809.

l {r}}b'{l} bn {{r}}{{b}}{{n}} bn bs¹ʾ {{b}}{{n}} {{'}}{{s¹}}{{d}} bn gmr bn ḥbk bn ʾmt bn ʾḥs¹n

By {Rb'l} son of {Rbn} son of Bs¹ʾ {son of} {'s¹d} son of Gmr son of Ḥbk son of ʾmt son of ʾḥs¹n

Commentary:
Several letters in the first two names have been vandalised by the addition of lines and the filling in of spaces as can be seen on the photograph where the additions have a different 'texture' to the original letters. The second sign was almost certainly a r but the small hook at each end has been enlarged into a circle making the letter resemble a ṯ. The fifth sign was originally a lām to which hooks were later added making it resemble a r. These hooks do not quite join the vertical. The second name has been rendered unintelligible. The first letter was originally a r like that of the first name but its small hooks have been joined by a vertical line giving it the appearance of a g or m. The next sign which has been made to resemble a curious ẓ was originally a bn where one end of the n was very close to one arm of the b. Whoever altered the inscription completely the join and made small extensions to the other ends of the n and b. He also joined the n of the following bn to the b of bs¹ʾ. The b and the n of the bn after bs¹ʾ have been joined and an extra line added to form what WH took to be a wasm. The text continues across the crack but the letters here are incised rather than chiselled. The first name after the crack has been very skilfully altered. One fork of the ʾ has been joined to make a ṣ. The following letter was originally a s¹ (the firmer semi-circle with a short line protruding from it) but has been turned into a m by the addiotion of a lighter outer semi-circle. Finally the d has been changed into a q by the addition of a loop on the right side of the stem. Note that the family tree on p. 302 of CSNS should be amended to take account of these corrected readings. The genealogy in this text seems to differ from that in 3807 which runs d'(y) bn bs¹ʾ bn ʾs¹d bn gmr bn ʾḥs¹n bn ḥbk.

The letters are shown as clear on the copy but on the photograph it can be seen that they are badly hammered over to the extent that the lām auctoris and the first name form an indecipherable mess. WH 3902 (HYGQ 33)

l s^{1}r{b}{t} bn gʾwn bn tmn

By S^{1}rbt son of Gʾwn son of Tmn

Commentary:
WH read this text as the continuation of 3901. However it is clear from the photograph that they are two separate inscriptions The beginning of 3902 is obscured by a patch of abrasion and the letters of the first name are therefore very faint and the reading is not entirely certain. There is a line above the third letter of the name which in some lights make it look like a s^2 but on the rock when it was copied this looked like an extraneous mark above a b. Similarly on some photographs the final letter of the first name looks like a k or a h, whereas on the rock it appeared as a clear t.

Provenance:

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: ʾbyṯ for ʾbyṯʿ

Commentary:
The text has been very thoroughly obscured by ligatures and hammering and only the first and the last two letters are certain What may be the ʿ of the first name can be seen between the ṯ and the b, though this may simply be a ligature. It seems that the two arms of the b have been joined and a line hammered between it and the following n. There seems to be another area of hammering between the n and the f. The latter could also be a s[2].

By Ḥs²dy son of Nybt

Apparatus Criticus:
WH read the first three letters as WH 3908, reading l ḥṣ, the ṣ being the upper part of the s².

Commentary:
WH 3908 and 3909 were written by brothers who used the close similarity of their names to write a joint inscription, in which they shared the last two letters of their names plus the bn and their father's name (bn nybt). Ḥs²dy has not been found before in Safaitic, though compare the Arabic name Ḥāšid (Caskel 1966:

321a). It is a common custom among the Bedouin today to give their children rhyming or closely similar names, as here.

Macdonald 1980: 197, 358–359: l ʾmr bn bḥl bn rh h- dmy

Commentary:

It is clear from the fact that WH cite one of their own photographs, rather than one of Park's, that this stone is not from Jabal Qurma, which they never visited. It is probably from the immediate vicinity of Qaṣr Burquʿ whence it was brought to the Amman Museum with other stones from the same area by Professor George Mendenhall in the early 1980s. The diagonal part of the inscription has been scratched over and the arrow of the archer to the right of it enters the crescent of the m (the firmer line below it cannot be the arrow because it is too low in relation to the bow). The scratches and other damage make it extremely difficult to read this section of the text. In Macdonald 1980: 197 it is suggested that dmy here (as in AbaNS 8, 32, and 44) could be a plural of dmyt, comparable to Classical Arabic dum^{an} (see Lane 917b). An alternative explanation would be that the author was from the oasis of Dūmah (modern al-Ǧawf) and that h- dmy is his nisbah, as suggested by Ahmad Al-Jallad in KRS 30. For a comment on the drawing see Macdonald 1993: 328, n. 160. For the presence of the women drawing out their hair see Macdonald 2012: 284.

By ʾhm and he took refuge with the Nabataeans

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: w ḍbʾ l- nbṭ "and he was on a raid to the Nabataeans"

Commentary:
It seems that ḍbʾ without l- almost certainly means "to raid", since on several occasions it is followed by a prayer for booty (e.g. HaNSB 365, KRS 269, ThSaf 56, WH 2818, 3731, etc.) and in KRS 33 the author says w dbʾ w ġnm "and he raided and took booty". However, ḍbʾ followed by l- is never associated with references to "booty and it seems that it is more likely to mean "he sought refuge with", as in Classical Arabic ḍabaʾa ilā (Lane 1763a), as suggested in Macdonald 1993: 314, n. 72.

By Mgr are the young she-camels

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: "the she-camel" for "the young she-camels"

Commentary:
Since the drawing shows three camels bkrt presumably represents the plural here.

Provenance:
Ǧabal Qurma, Al-Zarqāʾ Governorate, unspecified country.
WH worked from photographs taken by Mr Barry Park in 1955 who gave them to Gerald Lankester Harding. Unfortunately, these have since disappeared, and the photographs here were taken during a survey of Ǧabal Qurma and Tell Farah by Michael C.A. Macdonald, Geraldine King, Ann Searight and David Jacobson in 1982.

By {Ṣʾb} {son of} {Ngy}

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: l ṣʾb bn nn ....

Commentary:
WH did not publish a facsimile. This reading is taken from the photographs by Geraldine King (colour) and Michael Macdonald (black-and-white). The inscription has been hammered over. The second letter has been altered and originally may have been a ṣ or a ʾ. WH read the fourth letter as a b but it is quite different from the b of the bn which follows it and is more likely to be a r.

Provenance:
Ǧabal Qurma, Al-Zarqāʾ Governorate, unspecified country.

l kwkb bn ġlṯ ytẓr ḥyt

By Kwkb son of Ġlṯ while lying in wait for animals.

Apparatus Criticus:
WH: ytẓr ḥyt "he was watching animals"

Commentary:
The first two letters of the second name are clearly ġ l which have been joined at one end and in the middle by a later line which also joins the l to the ṯ. The name is unattested but compare Classical Arabic ġāliṯ "one who fights vehemently" (Lane p. 2281b under ġaliṯ). The name could also be ġlṯy (compare Classical Arabic ġalṯà "a bitter herb with which one tans" Lane p. 2281b) however given the lack of a connective between the name and the statement it seems more likely that the y belongs to the following verb which would be a circumstance clause (ḥāl) "while he was waiting for some animals".

Provenance:
Ǧabal Qurma, Al-Zarqāʾ Governorate, unspecified country.

Commentary:
The text has been obscured by hammering and the joining of letters. For ḥḏr meaning "he was on his guard" compare Classical Arabic ḥaraba (Lane 534a), and for ʿwr meaning "to destroy" compare Classical Arabic ʿāra "he destroyed (something) (Lane 2193c).

Commentary:
WR.C 1-8 are on rock A, a large rock face overlooking Wādī Rushaydah just upstream of its confluence with a tributary. This text is at the very top of the face and is direct hammered.

Provenance:
Site 32.2. At the confluence of Wādī Rushaydah and an unnamed wadi, Al-Mafraq, Jordan
Some 8 km from the village of Rushaydah on the road to Zalaf. A cairn on the right bank of Wādī Rushayda, on a promontory at its confluence with another smaller wadi coming from the south-west. The promontory is littered with huge boulders and fallen pieces of the cliff. The highest point of the promontory is crowned with a cairn, itself surmounted by a small cylindrical tower of stones. At the foot of the cairn are 2 Bedouin tombs. Site 32.2 is approximately 20 m north of this tower. This is site I in Macdonald, Al Muʾazzin & Nehmé 1996.

l grm bn ġr {w} mrṭ

By Grm son of Ġr; {and} he plucked out [his] hair

Commentary:
King (1990: 680) considers that the third letter from the end is a ḍ rather than a m. In the copy can be read a m clearly. Since the text is mixed Safaitic/Hismaic and the personal name mrṭ is common in Safaitic, we should reject King's reading. The Winnett & Reed's interpretation (1970: 85) comparing mrṭ to the Arabic maraṭa "to pluck out hair" seems more plausible.

l yġṯ ḏ- ʾl ʿmn s¹lm

By Yġṯ of the lineage of ʿmn S¹lm

Apparatus Criticus:
ZeGA 2: trans. of s¹lm "Heil!"

Commentary:
The top part of the second and third letters are not visible in the photograph although the letters are quite clear in the copy. The tail of the s¹ is not drawn on the copy. It seems likely that there are further letters after the second m.

Provenance:

By {Ġyrʾl} son of Mṭr of the lineage of {Ḥfy}

Apparatus Criticus:
ZeGA 3: l ġyrʾl bn mṭr ḏ- ʾl ḥfy

Commentary:
The initial l is rather far from the following letter. The second letter is rather doubtful in the photograph. The end of the inscription is not in the photograph and it seems possibly that the penultimate letter might be a ẓ and the lineal name read as ḥẓy.

Commentary:
There appears to be a small loop after the initial l which might be an ʿ although the technique of inscribing seems to be rather different from that of the other lines of the text. There is then a line which might be a l and then there is a hammer mark just before the m which might cover another letter. The letter read as the first s¹ is rather curved and the second one read as a s¹ is angular with one line shorter than the other. The final letter is more likely to be a l than a b.

By ʾs¹lm son of {Rqdlt} is the young she-camel

Commentary:
The text is written round three sides of a drawing of a camel.The second name is very odd if the reading is correct. The root RQD in Classical Arabic means ʿto sleep' or ʿto be ragged' neither very suitable for a theophoric name. The first two letters are certain (cf. the minimal circle on the q in ZF 13) but the loop of the d is more lightly incised than the rest of the letter. The l has become joined to the rear foot of the camel. The d-l could represent s¹ or even ḍ but the roots RQS and RQḌ do not seem to exist.

By {ʾnʿm} son of Gdn son of S¹lmy son of Bqlt son of ʿlg son of Hḏr son of Qn son of Gmmn son of Kmy son of ʿmrt son of ʿtq son of ʿḏr

Commentary:
Note that r has only one hook, that ʾ, h, ḏ have long stems and very small forks, and that ʿ is a very small dot, whereas g is an elongated oval. K has a square form. The first 3 names are in the 90° script. There is a 9-rayed star and 7 lines above the beginning of the text. There is a symbol of 7 "h"-like signs forming a star within the m of the first name and there are 8-rayed stars in the b of the first bn and the m of the 3rd name. There are two stars (the left 7-rayed, the right 6-rayed) above bn hḏr and 6- or 7-rayed star below the same bn. There is another symbol of 7 "h"-signs between the first m of gmmn and the k of kmy and a curious "L"-shaped line in the bn immediately after kmy. Finally, there are apparently stray marks in the g and the first m of gmmn.
