l {'}tbt

By {'tbt}

Apparatus Criticus:
CGSP 1: l trt compares the name to divine name ʾṯrt in Qat. MCAM: read ʾtbt or if the bottom right stroke is doubtful then the second letter should be read k and the name read as"ktbt' MNH p. 311 n. 50: on inscriptions found within settlements.

Apparatus Criticus:

CGSP 5

l s^2ms^1{g}rm*

By {s^2ms^1grm}

Apparatus Criticus:
CGSP 5: l {f}m{s^1} s^2km l gm "di {Fms^1} s^2km dei Gm" MCAM: the last three letters should be read as a separate text; the text could be read as Hismaic "l s^2ms^1grm" but the s^2 has the Safaitic form and it seems most likely that the third letter should be emended and either "s^2ms^1ṣrm" or "s^2ms^1ʾrm" read for the name.

Commentary:
For the last three letters read by CGSP see CGSP 5.1. It seems most likely that the text should be read as s^2ms^1grm as zig-zag s^2's occasionally occur in Hismaic. See also CGSP 7.1.

Provenance:
Column 2, unspecified region, unspecified country.

By {Md}

Apparatus Criticus:
CGSP 5: see under CGSP 5 MCAM: read l m{d} where the has a Hismaic form.

Commentary:
The above letters are read by the edition as the end of CGSP 5. The outer curve of the m is very doubtful in the photograph and it is possible the letter should be read as a f. If the last letter is a d then second backward hook is very uncertain. It seems possible that the letter could be a y although the line is placed on the side of the loop rather than in a central position which is more usual.

Provenance:
Column 2, unspecified region, unspecified country.

By ʾnʿm son of {Kʿz}

Apparatus Criticus:
CGSP 6: l ʾgm b{h}{d}z "Di ʾgm figlio di {Hdz}" MCAM: l ʾnʿm bn k{ʿ}z; it is possible that the penultimate letter should be read as a r if the left-hand side is only part of the incidental scratch.

Apparatus Criticus:
CGSP 7: l ḫs¹n m ṯs²m MCAM: l {ʾ}s¹lm; the second letter resembles a ḫ; the last three letters are part of a separate text

CGSP 7.1

l s²---- bn gs²m

By S²---- son of Gs²m

Apparatus Criticus:
CGSP 7: the last three letters are read as the end of CGSP 7 MCAM: l s²---- bn ṯs²m; first part of text more lightly scratched and the third letter unclear; again it seems likely that ṯ should be read /g/ although the s² is a zig-zag; this however is not insuperable as zig-zag s²'s occur in Hismaic.

Commentary:
See under CGSP 7 for the last three letters. For he possibility that this is Hismaic see CGSP 5.

Provenance:
Column 4, unspecified region, unspecified country.

CGSP 9: l s^{1}hr ---- hʾ----n{y}----y MCAM: l ṣhb w hʾ{h}ys^1 bny {ḥ}nn {h}y---- "By Ṣhb and {Hʾhys^1} the sons of {Ḥnn} {h}y----" MNH p. 311 n. 50: on inscriptions found within settlements.

Commentary:
It looks as though the w has been added to. All that is visible of the eighth letter are two angled lines and there does not appear to enough room under the damage for a line. The letter read as a b is angular with one arm curled in a hook. The ḥ is rather uncertain as it is not entirely clear that the third line is attached to the other two. The letter before the final one is very doubtful.

Commentary:
The first letter of the sixth name and the following n from the photograph seem to be a ḥ. lʿt could be lʿnt there is space for the n and an abrasion between the ʿ and t. There is no preposition after s^{1}lm and it is most likely that ḏ ʾl ys^{2}kr is a continuation of the genealogy rather than the indirect object of the prayer.

Apparatus Criticus:
JRWH p. 509: bwrṭ - by deceit for b- {r}{w}{ḥ}.

Commentary:
The stone was bought in Damascus. It has been missing from the museum for many years and could not be found at the time the objects in the museum were given new accession numbers. It seems possible that in the final phrase the author made a mistake and wrote b- wrḥ instead of b- rwḥ. But this is only a suggestion. The final t read by Ryckmans is not visible on the photograph. There is a thin line, but nothing crossing it, and it may well be extraneous to the inscription. The inscription is in the so-called "square script".

l ḥbbt bnt ʾs^{1}lmw w ts^{2}wqt ʾl- nmn

By Ḥbbt daughter of ʾs^{1}lmw and she longed for Nmn

Apparatus Criticus:
RyDamas 5537: ʾs^{1}lm for ʾs^{1}lmw

Commentary:
The inscription is carved round the edge of a shallow limestone tripod platter. There are several interesting aspects to this inscription. Firstly, it is carved by a woman, as are several of the inscriptions on stone vessels. Secondly, the spelling of the name ʾs^{1}lmw is very unusual in Safaitic. Thirdly, the shapes of the letters s^1 and s^2 are strange, particularly the latter. In many of these inscriptions on stone vessels the letters appear to be a mixture of Safaitic and Hismaic forms. Here the s^2 is closer to Hismaic, though it is rather longer than is normal in that script, and the hook at one end is unexpected, though it occurs in the name rs^2 in the Hismaic inscription WTI 11. On the other hand, the first letter of the author's name is more likely to be a ḥ (as in Safaitic) than a ṭ (as in Hismaic).

Commentary:
The stone is broken at the beginning. It is possible that the first letter which remains should be read as k, compare the "fork" of the k in ʿbdmlk. it is also possible that y should be restored after the s^2 t as in AKSD. It seems likely that [ts^2]wq ʾl- grr "he longed for Grr" should be restored before the prayer. The first letter of the name is noticeably larger than the ʿ in ʿbdmlk and s^{2}ʿ and is probably a g, as is the last letter of the lineage name, ntg, while the two letters which follow are identical and almost certainly r's (compare the r in ds^{2}r which is identical, as against the b's of the bn's which are much more open).

Commentary:
The inscription is carved on a limestone bowl with short handles at the base and (broken off) at the rim: diameter at the rim is 16 cms, at the base is 12 cms, and it is 9.5 cms high. The text is carved around the lower part of the outer face, running from the left side of the lower handle all round the bowl ending at the right side of the handle. The correct position of bn ys^{1}lm is difficult to judge since it is carved at right angles to the rest of the text below the t of ḫbʾt. It could either be the father of ḫbʾt which the author had omitted and then added, or it could be the father of ms^{1}k, whose name was already up against the handle, with the space immediately below possibly already occupied by AKSJ 1.5.2.

Commentary:
The inscription is carved on a limestone bowl with short handles at the base and (broken off) at the rim: diameter at the rim is 16 cms, at the base is 12 cms, and it is 9.5 cms high. The inscription runs above Damascus Museum 21039.1 from the left of the lower handle to just above the name ḫbʾt in Damascus Museum 21039.1, at which point it curls upwards and runs for 4 letters in the opposite direction along the rim. This was probably to avoid bn ys¹lm of Damascus Museum 21039.1, which must therefore have been carved before the present text. Commentary:
The inscription is carved on a limestone bowl with short handles at the base and (broken off) at the rim: diameter at the rim is 16 cms, at the base is 12 cms, and it is 9.5 cms high. The inscription runs from the right of the lower handle upwards and across the scar where the upper handle had been and along the top of the outer face of the bowl. It is thus clear that it was carved after the upper handle had broken off which suggests that it may have been treated as a "waste product" which could be used for graffiti.

l mqm w ts²wq ʾl- wḍyt f h lt s¹lm w qbll

By Mqm and he yearned for Wḍyt and so O Lt [grant] security and a reunion with loved ones

Commentary:
Damascus Museum 25757 is a limestone tripod platter, with one leg missing. Damascus Museum 25757.1 starts to the right of the spout and runs round approximately one third of the outer edge of the platter until it meets the end of 25757.2 whereupon it runs onto the base and after meandering ends on the side of the small cone in the centre, where the l l of qbll can be seen in the photograph. The translation of qbll follows Al-Jallad 2015: 333.

Commentary:
On a slab of limestone. The stone has been broken across the middle and the two sections were registered separately. The reading is difficult in several places, in particular the first r (if that is what it is) is extremely doubtful as the form of the letter is two sides of a triangle and is a completely different shape from the second r.

Commentary:
On a slab of limestone. The stone has been broken across the middle and the two sections were registered separately. What remains of the inscription starts on the very edge of a break and part of a letter can be seen on the break but it is too uncertain to restore. It is not certain how much has been lost. The ḏ has rather a short tail.

By ʾʿtl son of {'ḥbb}

Commentary:
The ḥ though badly made is not seriously in doubt. The text is "on a stone reused as a corbel" in the west room of the upper storey of House 13 in the southern aisle of the ancient village (personal communication from F. Villeneuve who discovered it). For the name see Safaitic and ʾytl in LPNab 35 and ΟΑΙΘΕΛΟΥ in Greek (PUAES III. A. 5 no 659 = Wadd 2286). Note that Dussaud & Macler 1903: no. 801 [= C 5157 and 5158] was also found on a corbel at Diyatheh. For Diyatheh, see Villeneuve & Sadler 2001.

Apparatus Criticus:
Stehle 1960: 23–24: w h ds²r ḏkr rhṭ ṣdq w h ds²r lʿn rhṭ s¹ʾ

Commentary:
The reading of r’ṭ for the penultimate word seems correct and the translation needs checking. It is possible that it is a mistake made by the author of the text. There is a chip above the last letter and it seems likely that an ’ should be restored.

Provenance:

Commentary:
A tracing found among Gerald Lankester Harding's papers. There is no indication of its provenance. For the interpretation of ʾmt compare Classical Arabic amata "he directed his course to" (Lane 95c) and for s²ʿr compare Classical Arabic šaʿār "luxuriant or abundant or dense trees" or šiʿār "trees in a land that is soft and depressed between two eminences where people alight, such as is termed dahnāʾ and the like, warming themselves thereby in winter and shading themselves thereby in summer" (Lane 1561a). Otherwise ʾmt might be interpreted on the basis of Arabic amata "he calculated (Lane 94c) and h-s²ʿr as al-šiʿrà "Sirius", the star dominating the very hottest part of the season of qyẓ which is followed by Suhayl the harbinger of the October rains. Commentary:
GMHK gives the following senses of the word bhʾ in Arabic: Lane 263a: bahaʾa bihi - he was or became friendly or familiar with him; Lisān 1: bahaʾtu bihi - ʾanistu bihi " I became friendly"; anahum ʾanisū bihi - ḥatta qallat haybatuhu (fear) fi qulūbihim; bahaʾa al-bayt - HDic - move camp - from Munjid. l bny bn bny bn ʾ{'}{s^1}d w fks^1 h- nẓ{r}

By Bny son of Bny son of {'s^1d} and he fks^1 the {one on the look-out}

Commentary:
The sentence following the genealogy is increasingly difficult to interpret. The root fks^1 does not occur in Semitic; Arabic fqs^1, for which a bi-form fqṣ is also attested, means "to die" or "to break". The irregular correspondence between unemphatic and emphatic consonants across Semitic languages is not unknown and, since fks^1 does not occur anywhere else, we can tentatively connect it with Arabic fqs. The existence of an irregular bi-form in Arabic may support our connection. The last letter of the following word should be restored as an r, since there are no roots with n as C1 and ẓ as C2. This produces a rather curious translation: "and he killed the one on the look-out". Another interpretation maintains the connection between Safaitic fks^1 and Arabic fqs, but parses the following word as hn- ẓr. Ẓr can be connected to Arabic ẓirr 'flint', in which case, we would translate the sentence as: "and he broke (struck?) the flint". This translation requires us to assume that the author of this text spoke a hn- dialect. Statistically speaking this is unlikely since the vast majority of texts exhibit only h-, but given that the Arabic ʾl occurs, as well as the assimilating article, ʾ-, we cannot completely rule out the possibility of a hn- dialect in this region as well

l ʾs^{1}d bn s^{1}g bn ʾs^{1}lm w tẓr h- s^{2}nʾ m- ʿl- ʾs^1{l}y

By ʾs^{1}d son of S^{1}g son of ʾs^{1}lm and he lay in wait for enemies from above ʾs^1{l}y

Commentary:
The final prepositional phrase lends itself to several interpretations: (1) The wood ʾasal- in Arabic can mean "brush (plant)" or "palm thorn". If we take ʾs^1{l}y here to mean the same thing, then the author was perhaps waiting, camouflaged by the brush. Perhaps ʾs^1{l}y is a plural form, *ʾas^{1}liyā or a fuʿlay patter, *ʾuslay. (2) Through metaphorical extension, the word ʾasal can also signify a lance(s), Arabic rimāḥ. If we understand the Safaitic word in this way, then we have a few options for translation: a. We can take ʾs^1{l}y as a lancer, with the nisba -y, and the author could be lying in wait above him: m- ʿl- ʾs^1{l}y "above a lancer". We can also translate ʾs^1{l}y as a "lancer regiment", producing: "and he lay in wait for enemies above a lancer regiment" b. We can assume that this is an ʾl dialect rather than a h- dialect and parse the sentence as mʿ- l- ʾs^1{l}y, "he lay in wait for enemies with the lancer" or perhaps "with the lance". c. We can treat ʾs^1{l}y as a toponym, perhaps a component of ʿl ʾs^1{l}y "the ʾs^{1}l heights". The word ʾs^{1}l occurs in a familiar toponym in Saudi Arabia, west of Riyadh, maʾsal. In this case, we have "he lay in wait for enemies from atop ʾs^{1}ly or from ʾs^{1}ly heights" C. The l of this word has a bit of damage in the middle that resembles an attempt at a loop. It is possible that the author intended a d, erred, and did not bother redoing it. If we restore a d here, we produce ʾs^1[d]y, which, among other things, could mean two or more (military) troops, following the meaning of ʾs^{1}d in OSA. Less likely, it could mean two lions. In this case, we can translate: "he lay in wait for enemies above two troops".

Commentary:
The root bhl occurs in OSA and Ethiopic meaning "to speak", which hardly fits the context of this inscription. Arabic bahala means "to pronounce a curse" and the Gt stem ibtahala "to beseech, implore"; Akkadian baʾālu also means "to beseech or pray". In NWS, the root means "to frighten," Hebrew nibhāl "be frightened"; Aramaic bihel "frighten". The NWS "be frightened" and Akkadian "pray" fit the context of this inscription best but we are unable to determine which one is to be preferred.

Commentary:
The editio princeps connects gl with Arabic ǧillah, which is given as a synonym for camels in the Lisān al-ʿarab. It is also possible to connect this word with Arabic ǧalla, "greatness", "of high rank", and translate the

HaNS 553

l lbd bn m{n}h w {l-}{-h} h- bkrt

By Lbd son of {Mnh} and the young she-camel {is} {for} {him}

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNS 553: mnh for m{n}h.

Commentary:
It is likely that the copy of the patronym the third l and second h is uncertain. The letter after the m is a dot and could be an ʿ. There is a cartouche of two lines surrounding the inscription and drawing.

Provenance:
Cairn 10, unspecified region, unspecified country.

HaNSB 15 (HaNS 15)

l nʾm bn {k}b{r} bn ḥbb ---- {f} h- ġnmt

By Nʾm son {Kbr} son of Ḥbb ---- {f} the booty

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNSB 15: "dry" for "{k}b{r}", dbr or dbb for {k}b{r}

Commentary:
It is possible the letter read as a f should be read as a s^2. The space between ḥbb and {f} does not appear to be large enough to permit a verb, but the author could have squeezed it in. The h following {f} could be one of two things: (1) a 3ms clitic pronoun, "PN, Verb-him booty" or (2) the definite article/demonstrative, yielding "PN VERBed the/this booty." The absence of a deity name tips the scale slightly in favor of the latter interpretation.

HaNSB 16 (HaNS 16)

---- w ʿgzt h- s^1my kll h- s^1nt

---- and the sky was unable [to produce rain] this entire year

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNSB 16: translation "the sky did not produce rain this entire year" (lam tamṭur al-samāʾu kulla hāḏihi 'l-sanah).

Commentary:
In Arabic, as in other Semitic languages, the quantifier *kull, when followed by a definite singular noun, can refer to the entirety of a category or span of time, kullu 'l-nāsi "all mankind"; kullu 'l-yawmi "the whole day" (Wright, Grammar of the Arabic Language, vol. 2, §82.c,d). Thus, it is equally possible to read the h/ as h-, that is, as a definite article, in this context. Either way, the semantic difference, if there really is one, would be negligible.

HaNSB 56 (HaNS 56)

l ṣrmt bn qds^{1} w tdym ntl

By Ṣrmt son of Qds^{1} and he was always on the move

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNSB 56: translation "and he drank water [which was stored in] the ostrich eggs" (wa šariba 'l-māʾa (allaḏī ḫuzzina fī) bayḍi 'l-naʿāmi).

Commentary:
tdym could more plausibly be connected to Arabic dāma "to remain, persist," with the regular confusion of w and y in weak roots, which would equate it with Classical Arabic dāʾim-an 'always'. This seems more natural than the translation proposed by the edition, "to drink rain-water that was produced by a storm without thunder and lightening." The primary sense of ntl in Arabic is to "advance, move forward, make progress," equivalent to taqaddam. HaNSB appeals to a secondary usage of this term which refers specifically to an ostrich egg that has been filled with water and buried in the wilderness.

HaNSB 119 (HaNS 119)

l ḏʾl bn ʿzn w ʿgz h- s¹my

By Ḏʾl son of ʿzẓ and the sky withheld [it i.e. the rain]

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNS 119: "and the rain did not come down" (wa lam yanzil al-maṭar).

Commentary:
The masculine concord between the verb and the subject h- s¹my in this inscription vs. feminine concord in HaNSB 62 (ʿgzt h- s¹my) invites comparison with the double gender (masc/fem) of the Classical Arabic cognate samāʾ-. Alternatively, Saf s¹my could represent a singular and a plural form which were distinguished only by their vocalizations. It is worth comparing this expression with s¹nt ḥgz -h bʿls¹mn in C 1240, 3261 (= Mu 93), LP 722, H 506, which seems to mean "the year Bʿls¹mn withheld it [i.e. the rain]".

l ḫny bn ʾmhr h- bkrt w rʿy h- ṣfḥt

By Ḫny son of ʾmhr is the young she-camel and he pastured the camels with large humps.

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNSB 145: translation of h- ṣfḥt "the side of the mountain"

Commentary:
We connect ṣfḥt to Arabic ṣuffāḥ pl. ṣuffāḥāt "camels with large humps" or, it could possibly be a sound plural of ṣāfiḥ "camel, ewe, or goat whose milk is drying up" (Lane 1696a). This translation is supported by the fact that the inscription appears along with an drawing of a camel.

l tm bn ṣʿd bn tm bn s²ḥl bn tm bn mfny w qṣṣ

By Tm son of Ṣʿd son of Tm son of S²ḥl son of Tm son of Mfny and he tracked

Commentary:
The word qṣṣ can be interpreted in two ways. The first is as a verb in the suffix conjugation, producing the preterite "and he tracked", and the second is as an active participial *qāṣiṣ or qiṣṣāṣ (D-stem), "and he is tracking." We favor the latter reading, as it is unlikely that the author paused to write this inscription in the process of tracking an animal. One is tempted to read the suffix conjugation as a past imperfect "and he was tracking", but the continuous aspect is not attested for the suffix conjugation in any Semitic language. More evidence is therefore required to posit such a development in Safaitic.

By Ṣʿd son of Qḏy and want of milk was widespread so O Ds²r [grant] well-being

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNSB 158: translation "and his fat cattle became abundant so O Ds²r [grant him] well-being" (wa kaṯurat māšīyatuhu 'l-samīnah, fa-yā ḏā 'l-šarī (ʾamniḥ-hu) 'l-hanāʾ.

Commentary:
tʾmr h- s²ḥṣ: The noun s²ḥṣ appears relatively frequently in Safaitic with the meaning "dearth of milk, want of milk" and, on this basis, HaNSB's translation as "fat" cannot be accepted. The root ʾmr is common Semitic, but its sense varies from language to language. In Akkadian, it means "to see", in Hebrew "to speak", and in Arabic, most commonly "to command". The Lisān, however, records an interesting marginal usage, with the intransitive pattern faʿila, attributed to the "ʿarab": ʾamira banū fulān, ayy kaṯurū 'The Banū Fulān increased in number, became abundant'. The preformative t- in the Safaitic verb indicates that it too is intransitive, suggesting a connection between the two. Thus, we translate tʿmr as "become abundant or widespread", like HaNSB, but h- s^{2}ḥṣ as "want of milk" with the generic article.

l khl bn s^{2}krʾl w ʾḫḏ l- s^{1}hm h- ṣhy

By Khl son of S^{2}krʾl and he took an archery position at the top of the hill

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNSB 162: translation "and he designated this grave for S^{1}hm" (wa ǧaʿala hāḏā 'l-qabr li-s^{1}hm).

Commentary:
We connect s^{1}hm to the Arabic sahm "arrow" and ṣhy to Arabic ṣahwah "the uppermost part of any mountain" Lane 1739b. Indeed, the high ground is an ideal position for an archer. The inscription literally reads: "and he took for archery the top of the hill."

l ġnm bn mṣrm bn mlk w wgd ʾṯr ṣʿr f ngʿ w ẓll mẓl s¹ʾ f h bʿls¹mn w h lt ġyrt l- m s¹ʾr

By Ġnm son of Mṣrm son of Mlk and he found the inscription of Ṣʿb and so he suffered and he remained in (a state) of perpetual sorrow and O Bʾls¹mn and O Lt [grant] blood-money [vengeance] to those who remain

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNS 170: translation of w ẓll m ẓl s¹ʾ "and he built a shelter over one who remained sick" (wa banā ẓallah ʿalā man baqiya marīḍan)

Commentary:
In Classical Arabic the root sʾr means “to remain” in the sense of “to be left over” (as of food after a meal, or change after a purchase). However, the active participle, sāʾir “the rest, the remainder” is also used of people (Lane 1282 c). In contexts where s¹ʾr refers to the inscription (usually in opposition to ʿwr) it means “to leave untouched" but in contexts where it refers to people it means "remain". LP 305's "remain safe" is stretching the meaning slightly, but the reference is in contrast to ḏlln "those who are lost, i.e. dead". The root ẓll should be connected to Arabic "to stay, remain". We take mẓl as an adverb "perpetually" (as in WH 180), and connect s¹ʾ to Arabic s¹āʾ "to be bad, sad".

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNSB translation of f rwḥ bʿls¹mn "and grant relief from adversity, O Bʿls¹mn" (fa-ʾariḥ yā Bʿls¹mn)

Commentary:
The absence of the vocative particle, along with the VS word order of the suffix conjugation, indicates that the verb is an optative, rather than an imperative. The edition does not translate bʾṣh---- either. It might be a toponym following the preposition b-, "at ʾṣh----"

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNS 190: translation of w tw{r} h- ṣfḥt "and returned to the side of the mountain (wa ʿāda {ʾilā) ṣafḥ al-jabal)

Commentary:
Safaitic twr could be connected with Arabic tāra, Lane 322b: “it ran or flowed”; tawwarahu “he returned to him, it, time after time”; ʾatāra - “he repeated it or did it again time after time”. From other inscriptions, it seems best to connect Safaitic ṣfḥt specifically with the Arabic ṣuffāḥ, pl ṣuffāḥāt "camels whose humps have become large, so that the hump of the she-camel occupies the whole of her back" Lane 1696a, or "a she-camel, ewe or she-goat whose milk is going away: or a she-camel that has lost her young one, whose milk has gone”, Lane 1696a-b. By Hnʾ son of Wrd son of S²hyt son of ʾs¹ and he migrated to the inner desert from the Ḥrn with his camels [to] the herbage at the pools of Yʾmr and so O Bʿls¹mn [grant] abundance and security and blind whoever scratches out [the inscription]

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNS 197: trans. w ʾs²rq m- ḥrn b- ʾbl -h s²ʿr b- rʾy yʾm{r} "and he faced east from Ḥawrān on his camel (moving away from) the snow storms and the abundant rains when he saw yʾmr"

Commentary:
The sentence w ʾs²rq m- ḥrn b- ʾbl -h s²ʿr b- rʾy yʾm{r} requires further discussion. Littmann (LP pp. 116–117) points out that this word frequently appears before names of places, which leads him to connect it with the root RWY "to water." If this is correct, than the Safaitic form, rʾy, reflects an active participial derivation, perhaps rāʾiyV (cf. Arabic QWL "to speak" qāʾil). The intransitive verb rawya (<*rawiya) means "be watered" in Gəʿəz (Leslau 1987:478). The active participle of the intransitive verb *rawiya , rāʾiy, would literally mean "being watered", presumably referring to the area. The pattern CāCiC is used in the derivation of some toponyms in Arabic, šāṭiʾ "coast"; or sāḥil. Alternatively, one can connect this word to with the root RʾY "to see", and assume that it refers to a looking point. Our translation also requires a preposition, *l, following ʾbl, which is seemingly missing form the text. The solution to this problem could provide more evidence for the absence of final short vowels in Safaitic. First, we would re-parse this phrase as: ʾs²rq m-ḥrn b-ʾbl h-s²r, with the h as the definite article of s²ʿr rather than a 3ms suffix pronoun. The article is often omitted in phrases containing the verb ʾs²rq (ex. NST 5: w ʾs²rq b- ḏʾn f h gd ʿwḏ s¹lm), even when the sense is clearly definite; we argue that the word ʾbl here follows the same pattern. Next, one should recall that HaNSB attests sandhi at word boundaries, with the assimilation of the 3ms -h and a following definite article, l- -h ḥyt *lah ha-ḥayyāt. In principle, a word final l- should assimilate to a word initial l-, in the same way, and this is likely the reason for the curious absence of the preposition. With these changes, we have: w ʾs²rq m- ḥrn b- ʾbl -h s²ʿr b- rʾy yʾm{r} *wa ʾas²raq mi-Ḥrn bi-ʾibil-li ha-s²aʿār bi-rāʾiyV yʾmr And he migrated to the inner desert from Ḥrn to the herbage at the pools of Yʾmr

By Hnʾ son of Ẓnnʾl son of ʾḥlm son of Rbn son of Mnʾl and he journeyed without stopping the year the Rwḥ-ites escaped and so O Lt [grant] security

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNSB 200: translation "h- rwḥn" "the herds" (al-qiṭʿān).

Commentary:
Rwḥ is an attested lineage (e.g. WAMS 5; C 5162 (=LP 1269 from the ancient town of Umm al-Jimāl) and an ʾl rwḥw in the Nabataean inscription LPNab 43 (from the same place), and the man who commissioned an inscription in Palmyrene (CIS ii 3973) in AD 132 [i.e. 26 years after the end of the Nabataean kingdom] who describes himself as nbṭyʾ rwḥyʾ "the Nabataean, the Rwḥite" and the common dating formula is usually s¹nt ngy X, where X = a PN. The final n should be interpreted as either a sound plural *ha-rawiḥ[īn,ūn] or a dual *ha-rawiḥ[ān/ayn].

By Mṣrm son of Mlk son of S^{1}ʿr son of Ṣb son of Mlk and he was watching the rain-clouds and so O Bʿls^{1}mn [grant] deliverance and security

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNSB 216: ṣl for ṣb, and translation of ḫrṣ h- ḫs^{1}f "and he was on the look out for the torrential rains" (wa rāqaba 'l-maṭar al-ġazīrah).

Commentary:
Safaitic ḫs¹f could be connected to Arabic ḫasf in the sense of a "source of water" or (also ḫisf and ḫasīf) "clouds that have arisen in the west bearing much water" (Lane 738c). Less likely is a connection with Arabic ḫusūf "lunar eclipse." The second letter of the fourth name is more like a b than a l.

By Ḍhd son of Nr son of Ḥrb son of Ḍhd son of Kṯbt son of Ḥmyn and he grieved for S¹lm and for Ġyr and for ʾʿdg and for ʿwḏn and for Bʿl and for Ḥny and for S¹ny and he was depressed and he drove the camels from the Ḥrn on account of snow at the pools of Ngm.

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNS 218: "kṯrt" for "kṯbt"; trans. from "w ngs²" "and he drove the camels from Ḥawrān because of the snow when he saw aṯ-ṯurayyā"

Commentary:
The penultimate letter of the fifth name is more like a b than a r. We connect Safaitic ngs^2 to Arabic naǧaša "he collected together [camels etc.] after a state of dispersion"; "he drove vehemently" Lane 2771b. Ngm occurs as a place name in CSA 2.1, SIJ 997, WH 3053. The etymology of Safaitic ngm is probably connected with Arabic naǧm "herbage", Lisān: al-naǧm min al-nabāt: kull ma nabata ʿalā waǧh 'l-ʾarḍ (the naǧm of plants: all that which has grown on the face of the earth).

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNS 220: ʿkfn for ʿ{r}fn; gmd for ʿmd; mlk for m{l}{k}; translation of mgdt "fodder" (kalaʾa).

Commentary:
The second letter of the first name and the third letter of the fifth name are similar in shape, both are a curve with a short hook and a longer hook extended beyond the back of the curve at the other end. It would be unusual to have k's of this shape and it seems most likely that in the first case the author has for some reason extended one arm of a letter r and in the second case the copyist has made a mistake by giving the letter a second shorter arm where if the letter is a k there is usually no arm at all. The copy of the second letter of the fifth name has indications that there might be an elongated loop attached to the line. There is shading over the z and y of the word which according to the commentary have been damaged are restored on the basis of the context.

By {Ṯlm} son of ʾs[1] is the young she-camel

Apparatus Criticus:

Commentary:
The fourth letter is a slightly unusual shape for a m. The inscription is surrounded by a cartouche which shares a part of the line of the cartouche surrounding HaNS 261. There is no drawing in the cartouche of 262; the author appears to be taking credit for the drawing of the camel in the adjacent cartouche.

l lhb bn dḫ{l} (h-) bkrtn

By Lhb son of {Dḫnn} are the two young she-camels

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNS 264: dḫll for dḫ{n}{n}

Commentary:
The last two letters of the second name are rather long and it is possible they should be read as l's. The second l of dḫ{l}{l} should probably be taken as an h. The copyist may have missed the side-stroke. The author of this text likely added another camel to the original drawing of HaNSB 263, and claimed ownership of them both.

l qdm bn tbn w rʿy h- nḫl rṯt

By Qdm son of Tbn and he pastured the valley Rṯt

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNS 273: translation of rṯt "he was ill, weak" (huwa marīḍ aw ḍaʿīf al-quwwah).

Commentary:
The inscription is surrounded by a cartouche. The edition's interpretation of rṯt as a verb is unlikely as we would expect a conjunction before it. It is more likely that it is the name of a particular valley, perhaps connected to the root WRṮ "to inherit", the maṣdar of which might have been riṯat, similar to sinah "slumber" from the root WṢL and ṣifah "description, adjective" from the root WṢF.

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNSB 287: ʿ[l][y] for ʿ----

Commentary:
There is no justification from the copy for the restoration of the patronym as ʿly in HaNSB. The last part of the inscription is very doubtful. The l, second h, second n, and the line of the q are all written in thinner strokes than the other letters of the inscription. There is, however, a drawing of a camel accompanying this inscription, suggesting that the translation is correct. The absence of the article on nqt is likely due to assimilation, see the commentary of HaNSB 39.

By ʾfṣy son of ʾs^{1}d son of S^{2}rk and he journeyed quickly from Ngd [or high ground]

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNS 303: Translation of narrative "and he arrived from Ngd or from Gd" (wa waṣala min naǧd aw min ǧad).

Commentary:
Ngd occurs in other Safaitic texts and that a journey from Najd (now in Saudi Arabia) to the ḥarra of north-eastern Jordan was perfectly possible. MCAM points out that specific regions such as "The Ruḥbah" (modern al-ruḥbah), "The Ḥawrān" (modern al-ḥawrān), and the inner desert (mdbr) do not take the definite article in Safaitic (rḥbt, ḥrn, mdbr), hence one might expect the region called "The Nejd" to appear as ngd in Safaitic, and "high ground" to be h- ngd just as h/ rḥbt refers to any shallow depression where water collects and the herbage is rich, rather than the region called Rḥbt (modern al-Ruḥbah) North Arabian Epigraphic Notes — I" (Arabian Archaeology and Epigraphy 3, 1992: 23–43).

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNSB 304: w ḫlf l- s¹lḥ h- mʾ b- nbṭ for w ḫlf l- s¹lḥ -h m- ʾl nbṭ; translation: "and he cast his spear and he struck with his sword and he penetrated all of his armor, so O Gdʿḏ, [grant] booty and security in compensation for whosoever saved water from the wells" (wa ramā bi-rumḥi-hi wa waḫaza bi-sayfi-hi fa-maraqa (min) kull durʾi-hi, fa-yā Gdʿwḏ ġanīmah wa salāman, wa ʾabqi li-man naǧā maʾan mina 'l-ābār, wa āḏī llaḏī yattalif (al-naqš).

Commentary:
Safaitic rmy is certainly connected to Arabic ramā "to throw." Unlike Arabic, however, its direct object, rmḥ (=Arabic rumḥ "lance, spear"), is introduced with b-. The words ḫzr does not have any suitable Semitic cognates, but from the context, its meaning "to strike", is rather clear. Likewise, mrq does not find a clear Arabic cognate (there it means "to let pass"). It could be read as "break" from the context; indeed, the other two occurrences of s¹ls¹l in Safaitic (KRS 1023; KRS 1039) are accompanied by the word ks¹r "to break" (cf. Arabic kasara). On the other hand, one can connect it to Syriac məraq "rub off rust", which is also used metaphorically to mean "to purify." In this case, the author might have intended a rather poetic statement, "and he was purified of his bonds." Safaitic s¹lḥ is connected to the same root in Arabic meaning "weapon" silāḥ. If the author was referring to the two aforementioned weapons, it should be read as a dual in the construct state, which would not be reflected in the orthography: *s¹ilāḥay-hu "his two weapons." On the other hand, the author might have been carrying more weapons, which were confiscated from him and not mentioned in the inscription. In this case, s¹lḥ would represent an internal plural, perhaps similar to suluḥ, which is a variant plural of s¹ilāḥ in Arabic. Safaitic ḫlf is connected to Arabic ḫalaf "compensation" (Lane 796b). In this case, Safaitic ḫalafa min would be mean compensation from rather than compensation for, as it does in Arabic. It is also worth noting that the D-stem (form II) and C-stem (form IV) of this root are used in prayers to God to give someone something to replace something that has been lost, thus: ḫalafa llāhu la-ka bi-ḫayrin and aḫlafa la-ka ḫayran "May God give you good in the place of that which has gone from thee" and aḫlafa llāhu la-ka māla-ka "May God replace to thee thy property" (Lane 792c). Note also that in Bedouin dialects of central Arabia taḫallaf bi- means "to take as compensation for a loss" (S.A. Sowayan, The Arabic Oral Historical Narrative: An Ethnographic and Linguistic Analysis (Wiesbaden, 1992: 384).

By S¹ʿdlh son of ʾs¹ son of Ẓnʾl son of Ḥyn of the lineage of Mʿyr and of the lineage of Frṯ and he longed for his family and so O Lt [grant] security and [show] benevolence and [grant] booty and he built the funerary monument and called upon Lt against whoever spoils it [the funerary monument]

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNSB 307: mgyr for mʿyr. Translation of ʾnfs¹ "graves" (qubūr).

Commentary:
Lane 883a: daʿawtu ʿalayhi "I prayed against him or cursed him". The script of this text has mixed features - see also HaNSB 306, 308, 310. The ʾ of ʾnfs¹ is most likely a definite article rather than an indefinite plural form. This is one of the few texts of which the author expresses affiliation with two lineages, and the only one, so far, to join them with w.

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNSB 308: mgyr for mʿyr

Commentary:
The ʿ at the end is scratched over in the copy. The script of this text has mixed features - see also HaNSB 306, 307, 310. There appears to be a stray ʿ at the end of this text which we have excised, since it is clear that the lineage group is frṯ as in 307. It is not read by the edition either. The author of 308 was probably a first

l s[1]ʿdlh w l--h ʾ- frs[1] w l- -h ʾ- bkrt

By S[1]ʿdlh and by him is the horse and by him is the young she-camel

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNSB 310: l s[1]ʿdlh w l- -h ʾfrs[1] w l- -h ʾbkrt; trans. wa lahu ʾafrās wa lahu ʾabkār.

Commentary:
It seems most likely that the ʾ is a form of the article and not part of a plural form. There is only one horse in the drawing and although there are two camels if they were both mentioned then it is most likely that the dual form would have been used. In addition ʾbkrt would be an unlikely plural form for the noun bkrt. This provides unambiguous evidence for an ʾ article, rather than ʾl with assimilation of the coda to coronals. An invariable ʾ- article occurs in some contemporary dialects of Arabic in the Yemen. For other examples of the use of ʾ for the definite article see HaNSB 312-313, 315-316. O Rḍw help Nʿmz son of Mnʿ he came and he was thirsty by means of his she-camel

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNS 314: translation of end "and he arrived (at the place) and his camel was thirsty" (waṣala (al-makān) wa qad ʿaṭašat bakaratuhu).

Commentary:
The preposition bi- is taken as an instrumental, ʾty b- "he came by means of". Gender concord between subject and verb is well attested in Safaitic and there are no examples yet of feminine singular concord with an inanimate plural. Either way, such an alignment cannot explain the masculine singular concord of the verb lwb with a feminine singular subject, bkrt. It is more likely that the verb here refers to the author and the preposition b- is not reflected in the orthography, for the same reasons outlined in the commentary of HaNSB 197 and HaNSB 39. ʾty f lwb [b-] bkrt -h ʾty fa la-wi-b-bi bkrt-h he came and he was thirsty upon his camel

l bzz h- dmyt

By Bzz is the drawing

Commentary:
The drawing shows a man hunting on a horse in pursuit of an unidentifiable animal. Behind him is an incomplete horse and two other animals. Above the inscription is a drawing of a male camel carrying two people. There is a single man on foot with his hands raised up in front of it; he appears to be holding a rope in his right hand.

By Ẓnn son of Rfʾt son of Ywḥd son of ʾmr son of Qn and he escaped from Ḥrn wounded

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNS 344: wḥdy for ywḥd; mn for m; Translation of w ngy m- ḥrn mn ksʿ[1] "and he escaped from the Ḥawrān from the illness which afflicts the udder of the ewe" (wa naǧā hāriban min Ḥawrān min dāʾ 'l-kasaʿ).

Commentary:
The order of the letters suggests that the third name should be read ywḥd. There is no n after the third m in the copy. We take mksʿ[1] as a passive D-participle. The Arabic root ksʿ[1] signifies a kind of striking with the hand or foot on the rear of a man. This is obviously the result of semantic narrowing and it is reasonable to posit that the term referred more generally to hitting in former times.

l mdʿ bn bnll bn ʾs^{1}lm w ġzz b- ʾbl

By Mdʿ son of Bnll son of ʾs^{1}lm and he was on a raid at Abila

Commentary:
There is a cartouche surrounding this inscription and HaNS 347-348 and 350. ʾbl here most likely refers to the city of Abila and its territory. C 2473 [Dn 82] reads l N w ʾhmd ʾbl f rdf m glʿd which I would translate as "and he stayed [see Lane 2900a] in Abila and then returned from Gilead." For Abila see Annual of the Department of Antiquities of Jordan 41, 1997: 303. Gilead stretched from the Arnon in the south to Bashan in the north, and bordered on the desert on its east, (see for instance the Anchor Bible Dictionary (New York, 1992: iii, 1020 s.v. Gilead). Gilead is also mentioned in KRS 15.

By Gḥs² son of Ḍr son of Kʿmh son of Ḍr son of Whb son of Mʿn son of ʿz O Rḍy [grant] booty from the territory of enemies so O Rḍy blind whoever erases [the inscription]

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNS 352: translation of prayer: ... from Hgr (tribe), the enemy ("min hgr, al-ʿaduwwah).

Commentary:
There is a cartouche surrounding the inscription. Safaitic hgr can be connected with OSA hgr "city'; Gəʿəz hagar "region, city, village, homeland, etc" (Leslau 1987:216). The exact sense of the word is not clear from the context so we have chosen the neutral term "territory". It is also possible to read the word as an internal plural, "territories".

By Ḏʾb and he camped near a permanent source of water and so O Lt and O Ds^{2}nr [grant] blood-money [vengeance] and security

Commentary:
There is a dot in the copy between the s^2 and r of the second divine name and it is possible that it is extraneous and the name should be read as ds^{2}r however the same letters occur in HaNS 363 where the reading is clear on the photograph. Both texts have zig-zag s^2's and should probably be classed as "Mixed" although in this inscription there are no other diagnostic letters. The word ġrt is likely a defective spelling of the more common ġyrt "blood-money [vengeance]."

Commentary:
HaNSB omits the patronym and the third letter from the end, which is a short dash, and reverses the order of the last letters. The Lisān explains that the root nṣʿ refers to the puriest state of all things (al-ḫāliṣ min kulli šayʾ). l ʿmrn bn ʿḏr bn ʿql w rʿy -h nwy f h rḍw ṭwf

By ʿmrn son of ʿḏr son of ʿql and he pastured it/them while migrating with the tribe so O Rḍw [grant] torrential rains

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNSC: rʿy h- nwy for rʿy -h nwy; translation of h -nwy "he pastured, moving from place to place" (mutanaqqilan min makān ilā makān).

Commentary:
HaNSC takes nwy as a circumstantial accusative introduced by the definite article. This seems unlikely, as circumstantial accusatives may be defined by a pronominal suffix but never the article. It is possible that the -h could be read as a 3rd person pronominal suffix, "he pastured it/them", without an expressed antecedent. The antecedent would have been obvious to the author, who might not have felt the need to write out explicitly what or where he was pasturing. This is in line with the syntax of similar inscriptions, e.g.: KRS 2526: w rʿy h- ʾrḍ nwy KRS 2568: w rʿy h- ʾbl h- s²q nwy If the author was referring to his animals, it would imply that non-human plurals took feminine singular concord, at least with pronouns. The edition connects Safaitic ṭwf to the Arabic noun ṭūfān "torrential rains", but it is equally possible to appeal to the general sense of the root ṬWF "to go around, circumambulate" and translate the word as "[safe] return." Until more examples are attested, it will remain unclear as to which sense is to be preferred.

Safaitic mny is cognate with Arabic manan "fate, death". The translation "death" may be too precise, and we have no evidence that the author was mortally injured or ill. GMHK has suggested that authors who used this formula were simply affirming their calm acceptance of whatever fate may bring them.

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNSC: Translation of h- tmny "the Teymanite" (al-taymāniyy)

Commentary:
The nisba tmny occurs once in LP 1195. The edition connects it to the city of Taymāʾ, and translates it as "the Taymanite". One could also connect the nisba to tīman,"the distant regions of Yemen." The Lisān states the following: and if their origins were the Tīman (the distant regions of Yemen), then they said tīmaniyy (wa iḏā nasabū ilā 'l-tīman (ʾufuq al-yaman), fa qālū tīmaniyy). Thus, the nisba tmny could also be translated as "the Yemenite".

HaNSC 8

l ʾḏnt bn ʿbd w rʿy h----b f s¹ʿd -h rḍw w ʾkl -h rḍw rʿy bql ntl

By ʾḏnt son of ʿbd and he pastured {h ---- b} so may Rḍw aid him and may Rḍw provide him with nourishment [and] he pastured spring herbage while on the move

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNSC: sʿd h- rḍw w ʾkl h- rḍ w rʿy for s¹ʿd -h rḍw w ʾkl- h rḍw rʿy; translation: "so help, O Rḍw, and he ate dates and pastured herbage which was of varying lengths" (fa-sāʿid yā ruḍā wa akala al-raḍ w raʿā baqlan nātilan)

Commentary:
See HaNSB 56 on the translation of ntl. Incidentally, HaNSB, the same author as this edition, translates the ntl there as "an ostrich egg which has been filled with water and buried in the desert". Safaitic ʾkl is best read as an optative of the causative verb, Arabic ʾakkala "to feed, nourish", followed by a 3ms suffixed pronoun and the name of the deity rḍw again. The conjunction w is missing following the second rḍw and rʿy, but this is probably the result of word boundary sandhi, which has already been attested with h, l, and b. The underlying form is likely: *wa ʾakkil-hu ruḍaw-wa rʿy bql... There is an empty space between the first h and the third b on the copy.

HaNSC 9

l wʿdʾl bn bdḥ w rʿy -h- ntl

By Wʿdʾl son of Bdḥ and he pastured it/them while on the move

Apparatus Criticus:
HaNSC 9: rʿy h- ntl for rʿy -h ntl "he pastured the natl" (raʿā 'l-natl)

Commentary:
HaNSC 9 appeals to the phrase in the Lisān: tanātala 'l-nabat "(the plants) became entangled and some parts were longer than others" (iltaffa wa ṣāra baʿḍuhu aṭwal min baʿḍihi). Obviously, the word tanātala refers to the way in which the plants have grown rather than the plants themselves so there is no way to justify the edition's translation of ntl as herbage. It might be better to take ntl as a circumstantial accusative (see the previous inscription), and -h as a 3 person pronoun referring either to the area or the animals the author pastured. See the commentary on HaNSC 1

l bk bn nṣrʾ {bn} hrml h- ʾs²lly

By Bk son of Nṣrʾ {son of} Hrml the ʾs²ll-ite

Commentary:
HaNSC connects the name Hrml to the Arabic verb harmal 'to wear out, ruin', e.g. harmalati 'l-ʿaǧūz: baliyat mina 'l-kubr "she was worn on account of age". The final y is about three letter spaces removed from the l, which could suggest that part of the inscription has been worn away and the final word is not a nisba.

Commentary:
Safaitic qnṭ could be connected with Arabic qunūṭ "despair" The translation of wld as the past tense "gave birth" by the edition is unlikely as one would have to assume that a feminine singular or plural antecedent took masculine concord with the verb. There are two better ways of interpret both wld and qṭn. One could take them as imperatives of the D-stem, wallid "cause to give birth" and qaṭṭin "cause to despair", or as verbal nouns in construct with their direct objects.

By Tm son of Ṣrmt of the lineage of ʿmrt and he pastured suffering from scarcity and Lt and Ds²r let there be abundance

Apparatus Criticus:
Hayajneh 2011: rʿy ḍrk "and he pastured Ḍrk [place name!]"
Al-Jallad Blog (http://aljallad.nl/blog/): rʿy ḍrk "and he pastured suffering from scarcity"

Commentary:
Carved in the Safaitic square script and boustrophedon in which line 1 runs from right-to-left and line 2 runs left-to-right but with the letters facing left. Note the Hismaic form of the ḍ. Here we have followed Al-Jallad's interpretation of ḍrk (cf. Classical Arabic ḍaruka "to be struck by misfortune", ḍarīk "poor, hungry") taking ḍrk as an accusative of circumstance, thus /Raʿaya ḍarīka/ "he pastured suffering from scarcity". This fits well with the pray for "abundance

l hnʾ bn ʿqrb bn hnʾ bn ḥyr w h- rgm

By Hnʾ son of ʿqrb son of Hnʾ son of Ḥyr and the cairn

Apparatus Criticus:
MNH p. 383 n. 481: on ways of expressing grave-markers. l N bn/bnt N etc. w h- rgm "By N son/daughter N and the cairn [is his/hers]."

Commentary:
The letters y r and w have been scored over. The text is by the same author and says the same as HCH 2. The text is written in an arc following the upper edge of the face with a line running beneath it beginning under the lām auctoris and ending under the m of rgm. Within the curve of this line is an apotropaic sign of seven lines. HCH 1 was almost certainly the first text to be inscribed on this face since it occupies the best area and the other inscriptions are fitted in around it.

l hrs¹ bn ʿqrb bn hn' bn ḥyr w bny [['] ʿl- 'ḫ -h tr[ḥ]

By Hrs¹ son of ʿqrb son of Hn' son of Ḥyr and he built for his brother {untimely dead}

Apparatus Criticus:
HCH: trḥ for tr[ḥ]; the word is omitted from the copy on fig.3.

Commentary:
The author originally wrote an ' after bny presumably as the first letter of 'ḫ -h and then realizing that he had omitted ʿl- continued the text above the y. He then drew the line of the cartouche through the ' in an attempt to erase it. He also appears to have written the first two letters of tr[ḥ] at the end of the inscription but may have left the word incomplete. There is certainly no sign of the ḥ on the photograph and the r is at the very apex of the cartouche.

l zbd bn ḥmy w bny {ʿ}{l-} ḫl -h hn' tr{ḥ}

By Zbd son of Ḥmy and he built {for} his maternal uncle {untimely dead}

Apparatus Criticus:
HCH: ʿl- for {ʿ}{l-} and trḥ for tr{ḥ}.

Commentary:
The first ʿl- and the ḥ of trḥ have been hammered over. Immediately after ḫl -h the author wrote an l by mistake and then wrote the ʿ of the second ʿl- touching it. There are four vertical lines immediately after the final letter. It is possible that they were added to the three prongs of the ḥ with which they are parallel to produce an apotropaic sign.

l ʿt{b}h bn

By {ʿtbh} son of

Apparatus Criticus:
HCH: l ----ḥ bn for l ʿt{b}h bn and takes this inscription as the beginning of HCH 34. JMAA XIII p. 193: ʿtrh for ʿt{b}h; translation of bn "He stopped [here]".

Commentary:
The text has been scored over and is unfinished. [The mark which makes the r appear as a ḥ on the photograph is purely superficial and is part of the over-scoring as is that which makes the l look like a h or even a ḫ.] The middle stroke of the fourth letter is not as deep as the rest and is probably part of the subsequent scratching. The letter is most likely a b and not r as suggested by JMAA XIII as the letter does not have distinct arms which is quite a feature of r's in these texts. The letter before b is probably h as the stroke forming the prong seems to be as deep as the vertical line of the letter. There is a further shallower stroke which is extraneous to the reading of the letter.

By Zbdy son of S²msy and he grieved for Hnʾ untimely dead and for ʿbdy who was killed. So O Lt and Ds²r [grant] vengeance from Ḥwlt

Apparatus Criticus:
JSafN 36 p. 46: hmsk for s²ms¹y ʾlt for h lt ṯʾr mḥwlt for ṯʾr lmn ḥwlt. JMAA XIII p. 41: f ʾlt for f h lt.

Commentary:
For trḥ see Macdonald North Arabian Epigraphic Notes II. [GK] There might be some justification for taking the l read after ṯʾr as extraneous to the text because its axis is different from that of the letters that follow. There seems to be no reason why if the l belonged the author did not continue by inscribing mn ḥwlt so that the letters had a vertical rather than a horizontal stance in relation to it. It is possible that the line was inscribed either prior or subsequent to the writing of the text or that the author of HCH 72 inscribed it as the back of the m felt it was too close to the letter ṯ and so abandoned it.

Commentary:
The end of the inscription on the edge of the stone is not clear in the photograph. The ẓ after the y is covered by an abrasion which was possibly made by the author if he realised that he had written the letter twice. The ʿ after the second ẓ is doubtful as the letter is rather angular and the line that closes it leaves part of one of the other lines protruding. The bottom of the following h and ḫ are broken. By ʿqrbn son of Ks^{1}ṭ son of S^{1}ʿd The beautiful woman played the reed pipes

Apparatus Criticus:
HCH: translation of h dmyt zmrt "The beautiful woman played the reed pipes". RyMA p. 123: h- dmyt zmrt "this drawing: a flute player". MDFD p. 56: l ʿqrbn ... h- dmyt zmrt "By ʿqrbn (was made) this drawing (which is) a musician.

Commentary:
We suggest taking h as presentative particle: "behold, a drawing of a flute player". It is also possible to read dmyt as a first person singular verb of the suffix conjugation: "behold, I have drawn a flute player". First person verbs, however, are exceedingly rare in Safaitic. Cf. l rbb ’l{k}’lk{f}{r}ḥy w bny ʿl- hn’ w wgm

By Rbb ’l{k}’lk{f}{r}ḥy and he built for Hn’ and he grieved

Commentary:
The available print is not good enough to check the reading of the beginning satisfactorily. A possible explanation is that the first name is rbb and then the author wrote ’l and the first letter of his lineal name a k. He then realised that he had inscribed the letter incorrectly by placing the horizontal lines in the middle of the vertical stroke rather than at the top. He inscribed ’l again and the correct form of the letter k. The next letter seems to be a f and the next either a r or a b. It would be unusual for someone to introduce his lineal name without using the pronoun ḏ. Alternatively it is possible that the seventh letter should be emmended to ḏ. The following letter is probably a ḥ as read by HCH although it is slightly in shadow in the photograph and then there is a y. If the above explanantion is correct then the lineal name might be kf or kf{r} but it would not explain the last two letters before the w.

l mʿn bn zbd bn ʿtk bn zbd w ḫrṣ ʿl- ʾḫ -h rdf ʾbl (-h) f h lt w---- s^{2}ʿh ----

By Mʿn son of Zbd son of ʿtk son of Zbd and he kept watch for his brother [who was] following {his} camels. So O Lt and ---- S^{2}ʿh ----

Apparatus Criticus:
SIAM II p. 192: the stone has been broken since the publication of HCH and what is left begins bn ʿtk; k has a backward kick see ks^1 in MSTJ 23; the expression w ḫrṣ ʿl- ʾḫ -h should be added to to the list in the commentary to SIAM 35 in SIAM ! p. 115-116. MCAM: HCH reads the letters in the centre of the stone as the end of the inscription whereas it is clear that they belong to another text (see HCH 102.1). Indeed HCH 102 continues in a straight line on to the broken piece of the stone and there is obviously no connection between 102 and 102.1.

Commentary:

The stone was broken when found though both pieces were present. The smaller piece bearing the first two names and possibly two or three letters (unpublished) beneath them has since disappeared. There is an apotropaic sign of seven lines on the same stone.

[----]lkt ḏ- ʾl fḍg w wgm ʿl- [----] [b]n[y] [h] r----mʿ----

----lkt of the lineage of Fḍg and he grieved for ---- {built} {h}r---- mʿ----

Apparatus Criticus:
HCH: ---- lht ḏ- ʾl fḍg w wgm ʿl- ---- bny hr ---- m ʿ----; suggests restoring the end as bny h- rgm ʿl- "built the cairn for ----".

Commentary:
The stone is broken in several places and two pieces have been joined together but the rest is missing. The tops of the first two letters following the n are broken and the above is only one of the alternative ways in which they might be restored. There is sufficient room for another letter between the r and the m and there are traces of letters following the ʿ. There appear to be further letters in the middle of the stone as well.

Commentary:
There is no available photograph of the inscription. The second letter of the third name is two vertical lines with a horizontal going across the top which does not resemble the shape of any letter in the Safaitic alphabet. By Nṣr son of {Ḥy} of the lineage of Mẓnq

Apparatus Criticus:
HCH: l ṣr bn ḥd ḏ- ʾl m----nq (the second letter of the tribal name could perhaps be a g). JSafN 51 p. 53: mglq for m----nq. MCAM from photo: ḥ{d} or ḥy for the second name and mẓnq for the lineal name. .

The form of the d as read in the second name in HCH is not very accurately drawn in the publication and in the photograph the letter looks more like a y although the upper stroke of a d could be hidden by an abrasion.

l ġṯ bn hn' ḏ- 'l 'mrt w ts^{2}wq l- kll 's^{2}r ṣdq

By Ġṯ son of Hn’ of the lineage of ‘mrt and he longed for all the righteous kinsmen

Apparatus Criticus:
HCH: the last part ts^{2}wq l- kll ‘rf ṣdq[nh] w dbq "and he longed for every acquaintance among his friends and he was attached to them". JMAA XIII p. 122-123: ts^{2}wq l kllg ġr ṣlq -l---dbq "he longed for kllg [who] deceived". JSafN 33 p.45: "dbq at the end cannot be translated for at least 3 letters are missing in the context which immediately precedes the word". MNM p. 351: [w] ts^{2}wq l- kll ‘s^{2}r ṣdq "et il désirait (la présence de) tous ses bons amis". MTB p. 43: as HCH then ts^{2}wq l- kll ‘fr ṣdq[n] [---] dbq "il se sent ému (en songeant) aux cendres de tous les Juste[s qu'on peut?] toucher". H unpub.: read kll ‘s^{2}r ṣdq "for all true friends". MCAM: correct reading.

Commentary:
There is no w before ts^{2}wq in the copy as read by HCH although from the photograph there does seem to be one. The reading however is somewhat unclear. The final part of the text read by HCH belongs to HCH 191.1. NB ṣdq may be a technical term. It was used by the Manichaeans for "initiates" as oposed to "sammā‘" for novices or "hearers" (Trimingham 1979: 143).

l ʾnʿm bn qṣmt ḏ- ʾl ʿmrt w nfr f ʾs¹lm w b{ʿ}{d} ʾflt s¹nt ʾs²rq rḍwt ʾl- hdy l- ym{n}t

By ʾnʿm son of Qṣmt of the lineage of ʿmrt and he deserted and then surrendered but later escaped the year Rḍwt migrated to the inner desert to Hdy l- ym{n}t

Apparatus Criticus:
HCH: qymt for qṣmt; w nfr f ʾs¹lm w bn -h ʾflt s¹nt ʾḫrq (ʾġrq) rgwt ʾl hdy l- ymt "and he fled and deserted and his son escaped when he dispersed (ʾafraq = farraqa) (or submerged) the hope of the Jews that he would die"□. MTB p. 43: w nẓr f ʾs¹lm w bn h- ʾẓlt s¹nt ʾs²rq rgʿt ʾl hdy ḥmt "he was entrusted with keeping watch and (now all) goes well for he has just built a good shelter (from the sun and the wind) the year of the migration to the east under the leadership for a second time of Ḥmt the guide". JSFP p.415: qṣmt. JMAA XIII p. 123-124: w nẓr f ʾs¹lm w qwd ʾflt s¹nt ʾs²rq rḍqt ʾl hdyk mt "and he was on the look-out and he saved and led ʾflt the year rḍgt went eastward to hdyk [who] died". TaIm p. 59: l ʾnʿm bn qymt ḏ- ʾl ʿmrt w nfr f ʾs¹lm w bn -h ʾflt s¹nt ʾḫrq rgwt ʾl- hdy l- ymt - ʾflt eg. of ibdāl ṭ/t

Commentary:
Bʿd would be baʿdu "afterwards" and ʾflt the IV form of falata "he escaped" (Lane 2435 b). This is the first occurrence of this verb in Safaitic and shows that it was distinguished from the verb flṭ "to save deliver". The ḍ in Rḍwt has the Thamudic E form occasionally found in Safaitic, especially in this name in which it is almost always used. The reading and interpretation of the end of the text are unclear.

Apparatus Criticus:
HFSI: it is possible ḏ- 'l bjlt or bʿlt should be restored before w wgm; w tfḫr l- -h "being proud of him". HDic p. 166: w tfḫr l- -h "and boasted of it". HIn p.405: ʿtrh for ʿlbh. HST p. 7: tribal name bʿlt in a very doubtful reading. JMAA V p. 93-94 appen. 3: m[k] for mr; end of the genealogy ẓry'l bn ʿlt; ʿlbh for ʿlbh(?); w tfḫr lh "and he has glorified Lh". JMAA XIII p. 194-195: l mġ bn mk bn w'ln bn ẓry'l bn ʿlt w wgm ʿl- fṣ'l w ʿl- ʿmrn w ʿl- s¹n't w bny ʿl- ʿh bh' s¹gmt bn ḥgt f ḫr l- -h; translated from w bny as "and he built upon ʿh [who] became familiar with s¹gmt son of Ḥgt. And wealth to him!".

Commentary:
It is possible the first letter after the third bn is an '. There then appears to be two further letters and then a gap before the letters 'l which start on the next line. The following b is clear but there is then a dip in the rock with what seem to be encrustations obscuring the letter or letters before the l and t. It seems quite possible that there is a n after the b as suggested by JMAA V which is perhaps followed by a circular letter which might be an ʿ or g as suggested in the edition. The interpretation of the letters after bny ʿl- is difficult. It seems possible that there might be a further l between the ʿ and l read in the edition.

l ḥml {w} ts²wq l- mtq [----] [r]ʿt ----fr

By Ḥml {and} he longed for Mtq [----] rʿt ----fr

Apparatus Criticus:
HFSI: the fifth letter is read as a w but the commentary points out that it might be a g; fs¹r ? is read at the end. JMAA V p. 95: ḥmlg for ḥml {w}; l mtqrʿt bnt fs¹rn "for Mtqrʿt daughter of Fs¹rn" at the end.

Commentary:
The reading of the fifth sign is quite clear but how it should beinterpreted is problematic. HFSI points out that it could be w or a g. If it is interpreted as a w then there are two forms of the letter in the text one a circle with a dot in the middle and the other a circle with a line across although this is not necessarily an argument against such aninterpretation see for example the instances in Thamudic E where different forms of letters occur in the same inscription (King 1990: 45-46 and n. 88). For a another variant form of w in this group of texts see HFSI 67801 where the crossbar in the circle is a short line and does not reach from one side of the circle to the other. There is a chip in the rock after the third t and the remains of what might be a t are visible. After the f HFSI and JMAA V have read an s¹. This might be correct but the smallness of the "sign" suggests that it might be natural holes such as cover the rest of the rock.

l ḥyn bn ʿq{d}t ḏ- ʾl kmy w n{ṣ}b w ḏbḥ w ḥll w ḫrṣ {ʾ}s²yʿ -h ḍbʾn f h lt w ds²r [s¹][l]m w qb{l}{l} {f} {h} {l}t {r}w[ḥ] w {ġ}nmt

By Ḥyn son of {ʿqdt} of the tribe of Kmy and he erected [a cult stone] and sacrificed and returned to a profane condition and watched for his companions who had been raided, and so O Lt and Ds²r [grant] {security}, and {a reunion of loved ones} {and then} {O} {Lt} [grant] {relief} and {booty}

Commentary:
The third letter of the second name is probably a d of the type found occasionally in Hismaic where the stem is extremely short and the loop very large, see the script table in King 1990: 720 and the examples in KJA 26, KJB 79, KJC 241, etc. The only other typical Hismaic letter form is the ḍ formed of two concentric circles, but this is also found in some Safaitic inscriptions. In the case of other letters, where there would be differences between their forms in Safaitic and Hismaic, ḥ ḏ s², they have their Safaitic forms Hayajneh's interesting interpretation of the verb ḥll here as "to return to a profane condition" could be seen to be supported by Chelhod's interpretation of the ḥaram/ḥalāl process in relation to sacrifice. He writes: "The very basis of sacrifice consists of liberating the dangerous element [derived from contact with the divine in a religious ceremony] and giving it back to the holy power, either by the shedding of blood — the liquid soul of the victim ... — or by total destruction as in the sacrifice of first-fruits.... Rather than considering sacrifice as a gift, it would be more exact in the majority of cases to think of it as a voluntary restitution [to the deity of the dangerous sacral element which the human had acquired while performing religious acts]" (1964: 57, and see pp. 50–57). However, it must be admitted that out of the 88 Safaitic inscriptions (so far) which contain the word ḏbḥ ("he sacrificed"), in only one other is the word immediately followed by w ḥll (SSWS 274: Genealogy w ḏbḥ w ḥll f h lt s^{1}lm). AWS 27 is the only other text in which ḏbḥ and ḥll occur together, but here they are a long way away from each other: Genealogy w ḏbḥ w rʿy f h lt w ds^{2}r s^{1}lm w ġnmt w ḥll w h lt ʿwr mn ʿwr h- s^{1}fr. It thus seems to us, that while this is an interesting interpretation, the rapid changing of subjects which is typical of Safaitic inscriptions would make "and he camped" an equally plausible translation. The word ḏbʾn is a passive participle acting as an asyndetic relative clause or adnominal phrase, see Al-Jallad 2015: 189. For the interpretation of qbll see Al-Jallad 2015: 333.

HrH 2

Commentary:
This may be another, very fragmentary inscription on a block similar to the lintel bearing HrH 1. It was illegible.

Provenance:
Ḥuğayr al-Ḥelle, Rif Dimašq, Syria
A ruined building on the eastern edge of a small khabra surrounded by low cliffs (c. 5 m high), except on the north side which is open. Many large roughly dressed ashlar blocks. The building must have been quite substantial, possibly with ceilings supported by a central pillar as at Khirbat ʿArʿar. It was first discovered in 1858 by Wetzstein, who gives a poetic description of it, as well as rough measurements (1860: 61–62). It appears to have been in ruins even in his day. Note, this is not Hağar al-Helle (the reported provenance of C 633-861), which has yet to be located.

By Dʿns^{1} son of Qbn son of ʿm of the lineage of Mṭy and he grieved for his father and for Lhgn and for {Nmr} and for mr and for m and for Dbbn and for Ġṯ and for Ḫlṣ and for Ḫlṣt and for S^{1}wd and for S^{1}ʿd and for ʾs^{1} and for Krzn and for Mnʿt and for Hnʾt and for Nṣr and for ʿḏr and for Ms^{1} his ʿmt and for ʿns^{1} his ʿmt and for Fḫmt his ʿmt and for ʾs^{1}dt his ʿmt and for Fhln his maternal uncle and he was unhappy about his friends and he set up a stone the year S^{1}lmt ʿwḏ ----

Apparatus Criticus:
HSIM 49217: possibly dgns^{1} for dʿns^{1}; nṣ{r} or nṣb - former "he was victorious " ; translation of the end: "the year in which (the tribe of ?) ʿwḏ was freed ".
Ryckmans G 1953: 524-525: reads first name as dgns^{1} and takes it as a Semitic transcription of Greek Διογενης; ʿmt "paternal aunt" not "grandmother"

Commentary:
The use of ʿmt -h referring to 4 different people suggests that it cannot be translated as paternal grandmother in parallel with the usual translation of ʿm as grandfather. However, it could also represent great grandmother. The translation needs some work.

l ḫlf bn nʿrt bn ḥṭm bn mlk w h- ṯyt

By Ḫlf son of Nʿrt son of Ḥṭm son of Mlk and the sheep-fold

Commentary:
All the names are known and note that nʿrt occurs in WTI 81. The expression w h- ṯyt is unusual but compare l N w h- rgm in HCH 1 and 2. An alternative reading would be mlkw h- ṯyt. The translation of ṯyt as "sheep-fold" follows WH but in fact it can mean a shelter for the night for any domestic animals or “stones elevated for a sign of the way to direct the pastor when he returns by night” (Lane 366a-b).

Provenance:
Unspecified site, unspecified region, unspecified country.
The stone was displayed at an exhibition of antiquities lent by the Saudi Arabian Deputy Ministry of Antiquities & Museums, held at the Institut du MondeAarabe, Paris, in June 1998. There was no catalogue and no provenance was given.

l m{n} h- dṣ{y} ----

By {Mn} is the {oryx} ----

Commentary:
The text is more or less illegible on the photograph but according to the photograhic notebook it contains the word h- dṣy.

Provenance:
Ishbikkat al-Namārah, Rif Dimašq, Syria
Ishbikkat al-Namāra was visited by most of the early explorers. It is shown on the maps of Wetzstein (1860) and Stübel (1889) as a large westward meander of the Wādī al-Shām before it continues its north-eastward course. The major part of this meander is now under the lake of the Namārah dam and it is difficult, if not impossible, to locate its exact position and how far it extended both upstream towards the island and downstream. Indeed, it is not clear what exactly Ishbikkah was. Waddington writes of it as a ruǧm (Chabot 1939: 366). On the other hand, de Vogüé calls it simply "a point called Sbikket el-Nemara on an escarpment on the side of the Wadi" (1860-1877: 146), while Dussaud & Macler write of "the beginning of the Ichbikké" as if it was a topographical feature of some length (1901: 88).

On a stone taken from al-ʿĪsāwī to the Suweidah Museum. Bʿrt: Note that in Arabic baʿīr applies to both male and female camels and there is no feminine form (Lane 226c–227a). The word is very rare in Safaitic with only one instance each of h bʿr (RWQ 309) and bʿrt (here).

l ḥnnʾl bn ʾws¹ʾl bn kbs² w ḥṭb mn ḍlt

By Ḥnnʾl son of ʾws¹ʾl son of Kbs¹. And he collected firewood from a ḍāl tree

Commentary:

Inscription and drawing found when planning the site in October 2003. It is c. 10m west of point 1 from which the north line was drawn. Kbs² does not seem to have been found before. The k is peculiar but it is difficult to see what else it can be. Ḥṭb is also new (compare Lane 593a-b) as is ḍlt which would seem to be the nomen unitatis of ḍāl which is said to be either a wild sidr tree or a tree growing on the borders of Yemen with a very pungent smell (see Lane 1816c). If it was the latter, the smell might be the factor which made the act remarkable enough to record.

By ʾmn son of {bddh} and he tended cattle in an over-night enclosure

Commentary:
It is possible the third letter of the second name should be read as a q. K 44 which is a wasm is on the same rock. The translation of rʿy as "he tended or kept" is more appropriate here than "he pastured"; mrḥ is translated from Arabic murāḥ "nightly resting-place of cattle camels sheep or goats" (Lane 1183b). However Lisān also glosses mrḥ as al-arḍ al-saḥl.

Al-ʿĪsāwī is the name of a probably ancient well between two headlands on the eastern side of the Wādī Shām as it runs northwards from the modern Al-Namārah dam to the Ruḥbah. The well is large, stone lined and with stone water-channels running from it. The main concentration of published inscriptions is on the top of the northern headland, but there also many inscriptions on its south-west slopes, coming down to the well and on the southern headland, on the crest of which is a stone tower.
