

A third century hoard of sestertii from Paros

Among the holdings of the University of Leeds numismatic collection is a hoard of 253 Roman Imperial sestertii.¹ Having entered the collection in the early 1950s as a gift of the honorary curator of the nascent University collection, W. V. Wade, the coins are thought to have come from the Greek island of Paros and seem to have been purchased in Athens in 1947. Unfortunately, no further information concerning the circumstances or location of discovery is known. Most coins from the hoard share a greenish patina with a small number having an orange appearance and three coins being much darker, perhaps indicating different positions in relation to the container in which the coins were buried.

The hoard contains sestertii of the following emperors:

Emperor	Number of coins
Hadrian	6
Antoninus Pius	4
Marcus Aurelius	9
Commodus	3
Pertinax	2
Clodius Albinus	1
Septimius Severus	3
Caracalla	3
Elagabalus	1
Severus Alexander	71
Maximinus Thrax	23
Gordian III	40
Philip I	50
Trajan Decius	16
Trebonianus Gallus	19
Valerian I and Gallienus	2
Total	253

The two coins of the joint reign of Valerian I and Gallienus indicate a closing date of 254 for the hoard. The mid-third century saw the widespread hoarding of sestertii in Greece and this hoard fits clearly into this pattern.² The ‘Paros’ hoard, however, contains fewer second century issues (and a number of underweight coins post-Gordian III) than many of the known hoards, making it difficult to classify it as a purely savings hoard.

¹ The University’s numismatic collection is substantial, consisting of approximately 20,000 objects. Many, including all of the coins of this hoard, can be viewed online at: https://library.leeds.ac.uk/special-collections/collection/1491/coin_collection. Photographs and data for all the individual coins of this hoard can be found by their accession reference (CC/PAR/x). The hoard has been added to the Coin Hoards of the Roman Empire project: <https://chre.ashmus.ox.ac.uk/hoard/12053>.
