Part III – Appendix and Catalogue.

VOLUME II

Appendix A – Glossary

Archetype: the model on which the coroplast based the creation of the prototype. It can be large-scale sculpture, or even another terracotta. There is no necessary mechanical connection between the archetype and the prototype.[1302]

Barbotine: a thin paste or slip of clay (also called liquid clay) used for assembling the separate elements on the terracottas before firing.[1303]

Figurine-patrix: see Chapter 8.

Derivative production (surmoulage): the collection of terracottas, covering all the versions and variations of derivative moulds, excluding the first generation. It can be either a process of the creating workshop (internal remoulding), or, more often, in external workshops, through the creation of moulds from figurines (external remoulding).[1304]

Generation: the collection of moulds and figurines produced from them in a series, equally removed from the prototype.[1305]

Modelling: creation of the terracotta, or parts of it, by adding clay paste either by hand (handmade) or with the help of a tool, in contrast to moulding.[1306]

Mould: the ensemble of elements of clay delineating an impression in which the clay would be pressed and take the form of the impression. It is the negative image, as opposed to the positive (figurine/terracotta).[1307]

Prototype: the first modelled creation, inspired by an archetype. It could be used fired or not. It is moulded and becomes the origin of the series.[1308]

Series: Ensemble of moulded products, which depend on the same prototype, including all generations, variations and

This prototype was initially solid but then was hollowed out for firing. Nicholls 1952, 220, used the term "archetype".

versions, obtained by the derivative production.[1309]

Type (technical-mechanical): the virtual image which is common to all the elements of a series. The prototype is the first material realisation of the type. With the derivative production it is transformed to the "avatars" of the series, the generations, variations and versions.[1310]

Tanagra, Tanagras, Tanagran: a conventional term used to refer to the female figurines of draped women, dressed in chiton and wrapped in himation. Contrary to the name given to them, the iconographic group was not created in Boeotia but in Attica in the third quarter of the 4th c., and quickly diffused to the whole Greek world.[1311] The term is used here to denote this particular style which was in vogue from ca. 330 to ca. 200 BC.

Variation: The term "variation" is used to indicate the minor changes or differences that might occur to later generations because of the manufacturing processes. These changes are usually involuntary and are not indicative of a wish for an iconographic differentiation.[1312]

Vent hole: an opening, usually at the back of the terracotta, for allowing the air to escape during drying and firing. They can have various shapes.[1313] See also Chapter 8.

Version: deliberate changes in order to distinguish products of one type and to alter their iconography.[1314] The most common changes are the use of different heads, or simple changes with the addition of smaller parts, such as attributes, hairstyles, headdresses, modelled or moulded

SANCTUARY OF PASIKRATA

FEMALE TERRACOTTAS

Protomes

1. Female protome-bust or statue. (Pls. 1 and 88).
VM M 2001.
Demetrias, Pasikrata Sanctuary.
Identification: Photo A/A 8511 (Pl. 61).
Clay: 7.5YR, 6/6 (reddish yellow). Relatively fine with some inclusions. Grey core.
H: 0.24m. W: 0.39m. D: 0.13m.
Thickness of clay: 0.036m. (drapery right side); 0.013m. (left shoulder).
Part of clay female statue or possibly life-size protome-bust. Restored with plaster: the right shoulder (which has been restored higher than the left shoulder), the right side of the clavicle (with a hole in the middle), a fragment above the left breast, the second (from top) button on the left sleeve, parts below the chest. There are pieces missing compared to the photo A/A 8511 (Pl. 61): 1) below the belt (part of the garment), 2) part of the right elbow (next to the restored part), 3) the back. It is evident from the photo that the bust continued at the back and the shoulder. The breaks are ancient. The original hole on the neck is on the inside, which indicates that its use is to hold the head, that would have been fired separately, and not for the addition of metal jewellery.
Female figure, wearing a high-girded, sleeved chiton. On the left shoulder, the folds are clearly defined and two of the buttons survive, the first and the third.
Mould-made. Hollow. The back might have been also mould-made.
Traces of white slip on the left arm, on the buttons.

Clay: 5YR, 6/6 (reddish yellow). Fine with a few inclusions. Hard. Micaceous.

H: 0.06m. W: 0.043m. D: 0.026m.
Only the torso survives. Missing the head and broken below the hips. The figure is wrapped in a himation. The right arm is in the "arm-sling" pose, raised to the clavicle, inside the himation. The left arm is lowered to the side. probably pulling the himation there, because of a diagonal fold that is created from the right elbow to where the left hand would have been.
Mould-made. Hollow. Modelled back with ellipsoid vent. Good quality mould.
White slip. Traces of dark colour on the himation.
Date: 3rd c. (?).
Parallels: Mollard-Besques 1972, nos. D 114-115, pl. 26 b and e; Rumscheid 2009, no. 133, pl. 58, 2. (both similar stance but not from the same mould).

NAM 32696.
Demetrias, Pasikrata Sanctuary.
Identification: Fragment from Photo A/A 8512 (Pl. 60), 2nd row, 2nd from left. (It has fresh breaks on the lower part).
Clay: 5YR, 5/6 (yellowish red). Fine with a few inclusions. Hard.
H: 0.044m. W: 0.05m. D: 00.027m.
Only the torso and part of the arms survive, the left forearm is broken. The back is missing.
The figure wears a chiton and himation, which leaves the right side of the chest uncovered. The right arm is bent at the elbow, comes to the front, below the breast, holding the himation. The left arm is bent at the elbow and rests at the back. Thus, a triangular group of folds is created on the left side of the chest and shoulder.
Mould-made. Hollow.
Traces of white slip.
Date: 3rd c. (?).

The right figure survives to the chest. The left figure is broken below the thighs. The two girls are wearing high-girded short-sleeved chitons with overfolds. The right figure is covered with a himation. The left figure supports the weight on the right leg and hugs the left figure with the left arm, which is placed on the chest. The head turns to the right and looks towards the right figure. The right figure has the right arm bent at the elbow and rests on the waist. The head turns to the left and looks upwards. The hair in both figures is in melon hairstyle with locks falling to the shoulders and a bun on the crown of the head.
Mould-made. Hollow. Modelled back with large triangular vent.
White slip. Red colour on the hair. Salmon-pink colour on the face.
Date: 3rd c. (?).
Parallels: for groups hugging see Goldman & Jones 1942, pl. XXIV, V-h-4, Group H, P409.

Demetrias, Pasikrata Sanctuary.
Identification: Photo A/A 8515 (Pl. 62), bottom row, 2nd from left; Photo A/A 8518, 1st row, 11th from left.
Clay: 5YR, 6/6 (reddish yellow). Fine. Medium hard.
H: 0.06m. W: 0.04m. D: 0.036m.
Head and neck of young male figurine. Joined from two fragments. Broken diagonally from the base of the neck to the middle of the neck. New break at the base of the face. Many chips on the surface. Missing the mouth and the ivy leaves of the right side have been detached and broken. The head is frontal and tilts slightly to the right. The facial characteristics are rendered in detail. The hair is short with short locks on the forehead. The figure wears a thick wreath with a ribbon wrapped around it and ivy leaves, two surviving on the left side.
Perhaps banqueter.
Mould-made. Solid. Modelled back. The wreaths and leaves were added separately after moulding.
Salmon-pink colour on the face. Red colour on the hair.

Clay: 5YR, 6/6 (reddish yellow). Fine with a few inclusions. Black core.
H: 0.081m. W: 0.086m.
Upper part of large figurine. Joined from five fragments, missing a large fragment in front (compared to the 1912 photos). The chest is nude, while part of a himation is wrapped around the elbow. The head tilts intensely to the left. The left arm is bent at the elbow and raised up. The hand is also bent with the palm facing downwards. The right arm has been detached but would have been raised, as is evident from the black core. The hair is short. The figure wears a thick wreath around its neck. He is beardless.
Mould-made probably from two moulds one for the head and one for the body. Hollow. Modelled back. The left arm and the wreath are probably separately made after moulding. Good mould.
White slip. Salmon-pink colour on the flesh and the garment.

Clay: 10R, 5/8. Fine with inclusions. Hard.
H: 0.18m. W: 0.062m. D: 0.054m.
Intact with the exception of chips on the surface. Consists of two sides the front and the back which are separated by peripheral band of 0.01m. thickness.
Standing woman, dressed in chiton and wrapped in a long himation. The left leg supports the weight, while the right is bent slightly at the knee and to the side. The head is slightly turned to the right. The chiton creates thin vertical folds, while the himation broader, diagonal folds. The latter is wrapped from the left, around the back, falling to the front left side. The left arm is wrapped in the himation and lowered to the side. The right arm is bent at the elbow and raised to the chest, inside the himation. Two locks of hair on each side fall to the clavicle. The facial features are very worn. There is a hole at the top (maybe for suspension). Around the edges, especially visible to the left and right of the head, there are rounded indentations, which are matched at the back, the "keys" for the mould. Rectangular base. The back is also moulded, matching the folds of the front.

Mould-made. Hollow.

Female figure. Stands frontally with the right leg supporting the weight and the left bent to the side. The left arm is lowered perhaps resting on a pillar (seen to the left of the left shin). The right arm is bent at the elbow. Wears a long high-girded chiton with a V-fold on the chest. The himation is worn over the shoulders and covers the right arm. The right hand holds the himation at the level of the right hip; a roll is formed over the hips; the garment covers both legs, with its edge visible at the left side. The head tilts slightly to the right. The face is oval with the features clearly rendered. The hair is rendered in the knidian hairstyle and adorned with a stephane. She wears earrings. A small child is supported on her left shoulder turned to ¾ view to the right. Perhaps Eros. Oval base.
The back is hollow and not moulded as with the previous example.

SANCTUARY OF THE MOTHER OF THE GODS

MOTHER OF THE GODS

281. Mother of the Gods. (Pl. 19).
NAM 32703.
Demetrias, Metroon.
Clay: 5YR, 5/6 (yellowish red). Fine with few inclusions. Grey core.
H: 0.147m. W: 0.176m. D: 0.05m.
Broken: the right forearm (which was probably extending outwards); half of the back; small parts of the lower torso. Missing the lower part of the figure. Joined from several fragments. Chips on the surface, especially on the face and the left side of the crown. The neck is restored with plaster. Restorations with plaster on the back of the throne.
Shown seated frontally. Wears a high mural crown, a long-sleeved-buttoned high-girded chiton and a himation. She holds a tympanon with the left arm to the side. The himation is wrapped around the left arm from the elbow upwards, covering the left shoulder and the back and coming to the right side (visible from the pink colour) and, going under the right arm. The right arm is lowered, bent at the elbow and would have extended forward, probably holding a phiale. The head is (perhaps) tilted to the right. The hair is formed of long wavy locks, with two falling on either side of the chest. The crown is tall with one wider crenelation in the middle and a narrower crenelation on either side.
The back of the throne which is visible has two cross-like ends.
Mould-made. Hollow. Curved Modelled back. There would have been a large vent covering much of the back.
Covered almost entirely with white slip (also parts of the back). Pink colour on the himation. Red colour on the crown, the tympanon and the end of the throne. Blue colour on the right side of the crown on the band, and on the side of the tympanon.
Unpublished.

282. Mother of the Gods. (Pl. 19).
NAM 32712.
Demetrias, Metroon.
Clay: 5YR, 6/6 (reddish yellow). Fine.
H: 0.081m. W: 0.049m.
Head. Broken below the neck. Missing the locks on either side of the neck.
There is a slight tilt of the head to the right. Wears a high crown and earrings. The hair is similar to the previous one.
Mould-made. Solid head. Hollow body. Modelled back.
Unpublished.

283. * Mother of the Gods. (Pl. 19).
VM M 5678 XVII.
Demetrias, possibly Metroon (Originally in the Apostolides Collection).
Clay: 5YR, 7/4 (pink). Fine with a few inclusions. Friable.
H: 0.177m. W: 0.0152m. D: 0.062m.
Upper part. Missing the bottom part and parts on the head and face, as well as the tympanon, the end of the throne on the left and its entirety at the right side. Restored with plaster in large parts, the bottom, the mouth, the right side of the face and head, the back of the head, the right side of the figure from the right shoulder, which would have been extended further, small parts of the mural crown. At the back with faded letters reads ΑΠΟΣΤΟΛΙΔΗΣ written with pencil.
Wears a mural crown. Under the crown there are added pellets of clay, which might indicate a wreath. With added pellet of clay an earring survives on the left side. The hair is parted in the middle and falls in two long, twisted locks at either side, to the level of the breasts. The left arm is raised to the side to hold the tympanon from its top. The right arm is relaxed downwards. She is wearing a sleeved high-girded chiton with V-folds on the chest and a himation, visible on the left shoulder. The back of the throne is high, reaching the back of the head.

Mould-made. Hollow, including the head. Modelled back.
Traces of red colour on the mural crown.
Bibliography: Hornung-Bertemes 2007, 125, no. 58, pl. 9.

284. Lion. (Pl. 19).
NAM 32704.
Demetrias, Metroon.
Clay: 7.5YR, 5/6 (strong brown). Fine, relatively hard with a few fine inclusions. Black core.
H: 0.028m. W: 0.088m. D: 0.08m.
Broken: the bottom part; the right side; the face; the back.
Shown seated on the hind legs, while the front legs are straight. Probably part of a Mother of the Gods figurine.
Mould-made probably from two moulds? Hollow.
Covered with white slip. Salmon-pink colour covers most surfaces, on the mane, the legs.
Parallels: [426].
Unpublished.

285. Lion. (Pl. 19).
NAM 32705.
Demetrias, Metroon.
Clay: 5YR, 5/8 (yellowish red). Fine. Grey core.
H: 0.04m. W: 0.044m. D: 0.058m.
Surviving: the right hind leg with the claws, on which it is seating and part of the front right leg; small part of the base under the front leg. Probably part of a Mother of the Gods figurine (different from the previous).
Mould-made. Hollow.
Covered with white slip. Salmon-pink colour on most surfaces.

286. Lion. (Pl. 19).
NAM 32706.
Demetrias, Metroon.
Clay: 2.5YR, 5/8 (red). Fine with a few small inclusions.
H: 0.057m. W: 0.05m.
Surviving: parts of the front legs and of the neck. The neck is a bit off-set tilting to the left.
Probably part of a Mother of the Gods figurine (different from the previous two).
Mould-made. Hollow.
Covered in white-yellowish slip.
Unpublished.

287. Lion. (Pl. 19).
NAM 32724.
Demetrias, Metroon.
Clay: 5YR, 5/8 (yellowish red). Fine with a few inclusions.
H: 0.046m. W: 0.025m. D: 0.034m.
Surviving: the left front leg, with part of the base underneath it.
Probably part of a Mother of the Gods figurine.
Mould-made. Hollow. Modelled back.
Traces of salmon-pink colour.
Unpublished.

288. Mother of the Gods. (Pl. 20).
VM BE 7447.
Demetrias, Metroon.
Clay: 5YR, 6/6 (reddish yellow). Fine.
H: 0.21m. W: 0.13m. D: 0.074.
Broken below the thighs, apart from the two small sides of the throne. The cross-like ends on the left side are broken. One of the cross-like ends on the right side is partly broken.
Seated on throne with cross-like ends and a cushion. Wears crown and polos and a veil over the head. Wears a high-girded, sleeved chiton with V-fold, and overfold at the sides. The hair is parted in the middle, framing the face and two locks are loose on each shoulder.

Holds a tympanon with the left arm, and a phiale on the right. A small lion rests on her lap.
Mould-made. Hollow. Modelled back. Ellipsoid vent.
White slip. Red colour on the tympanon.
Bibliography: Batziou-Efstathiou 2001, fig. 13; Hornung-Bertemes 2007, Abb. A.

289. Mother of the Gods. (Pl. 20).
VM BE 13693.
Demetrias, Metroon.
Clay: 5YR, 6/6 (reddish yellow). Fine.
H: 0.135m. W: 0.1m. D: 0.072m.
Broken below the waist. Missing: part of the throne, apart from two narrow sides; the thighs and legs (the thigh area has been restored with plaster); the top of the crown. The head was broken and restored with a small addition of plaster.
Seated on throne with cross-like ends. Holds a tympanon on the left arm and a phiale on the right hand. Wears a polos on the head, a chiton and above it a naiskos-form with pedimental top (prostethidion) and with several symbols depicted on it: on the top register, a square on the left, a circular object with a protuberant omphalos in the centre and perhaps cymbals on the right; on the lower register, a crescent moon on the left, a large cone-shaped object in the centre and two smaller oval objects, one below the other; below the crescent is an oval object that Batziou-Efstathiou interprets as an acorn. Perhaps seated lions on either side of the throne.
Mould-made. Hollow. Modelled back. Large round vent. The incision where the coroplast tried to cut the vent higher is visible.

HOUSE ON THE KATSIPHAS PLOT

355. Mother of the Gods protome-bust. (Pl. 23).
VM BE 33409.
Demetrias, Katsiphas plot.
Clay: 5YR, 5/6 (yellowish red). Fine. Grey core in the headpiece.
H: 0.27m. W: 0.182m. D: 0.072m.
Female protome-bust. Survives almost intact apart from the headpiece, part of which has been chipped off and broken. Joined from many fragments.
The head is frontal. The face has rounded cheekbones and full lips. The wavy hair is parted in the middle and frames the face, with two locks falling on both sides to the chest. She wears a headpiece consisting of a roll and a higher part that is broken. She wears earrings, a necklace and a spiral bracelet on the left arm. She seems to wear a second necklace which ends in a trapezoid pendant that falls between the breasts. She also wears a high-girded chiton which creates V-folds at the chest.
The headpiece is very similar to that of the Mother of the Gods protome from Kallipetra (see below). The fact that the grey core in the headpiece is in two vertical strips could indicate that it was a mural crown with attached clay strips to indicate the crenellations (that were detached). In addition, the two locks of hair on each shoulder resemble the iconography of the Mother of the Gods.
Mould-made. The headpiece, the earrings, locks of hair, buttons of the chiton, have been added with extra clay. Modelled back with two vents, one round on the head and a large irregular that covers almost all the back.
Covered in white slip. The face has been painted with a more intense white than the slip (lead white?). Dark red/brown colour on the hair and locks.
Parallels: Batziou-Efstathiou 2010, fig. 4a-b [278] (different mould, but very similar hair and hair band); Stefani 2017, no. 440; Bell 1981, 148, nos. 155-156; Rumscheid 2006, no. 179, 465-466, pl. 72, 73; Karamitrou-Mentesidi 2008, 38, fig. 39; Karapanou 2014, 422-423, fig. 4γ-δ (for similar technique, but different hairstyle and identification).

Torso. Missing the head, forearms, legs from the mid-thigh down and wings.
Eros as a young boy. The left leg in motion moves forward, the right backwards. The left arm is slightly raised forward. The right is also slightly raised but not as much. Wears a himation around the shoulders that is billowing backwards on the left side because of the movement. At the back the breaks of the wings that were attached are visible. Also, there is another break for a ring for hanging, similar to that on the Nike from the Pasikrata sanctuary.
Mould-made on both sides. Solid. The himation is modelled and attached after the moulding.

White slip. Bright pink-fuchsia colour on the himation.
Date: 3rd c.

Figurine from a grave in the South Cemetery

505. Eros riding an animal. (Pl. 29).
VM M 2075.
Demetrias, South Cemetery.

Identification: Arvanitopoulos 1915a, 178.
Clay: 2.5YR, 6/8 (light red). Fine with very small inclusions. Micaceous.
H: 0.142m. W: 0.122m. D: 0.049m.
Almost intact except for a small part missing at the back and the top of the animal's head which has been restored with plaster.
Eros is shown as a winged child, dressed in a chitoniskos with a himation wrapped around his right forearm, covering the clavicle and chest, going back and wrapped around the left forearm. He as small wings that are extended on each side. The wings have an incised line. Facing to the left. The torso is frontal, the head is almost frontal, with a slight turn to the left. The right arm is resting on the animal, holding a small round object, maybe a fruit, while its left is holding the animal from the head. The hair is curly to the shoulders, incised to give better definition on the curls, with a bow on the top of the head, possibly from added clay. The facial features are worn. The animal has long hair and is standing on its hind legs, while the front legs are on the air, possibly shown galloping. It has a small round tail. Bertemes identifies it as a boar. However, boars have short legs, while this has longer legs. In addition, boars have short hair. It seems closer to a ram. The top of the head is missing, making it difficult to identify it.
Mould-made. Hollow. Modelled back with large round vent.
Parallels: Very similar to a figurine riding an ibex (aigagros) or ram in the Sabouroff collection, see Furtwangler 1883, pl. CXIII.

Thin oval base.

White slip. Possibly lead white on the face.
Parallels: Besques 1992, 46, nos. D 4259-4260, pl. 18b-c, very similar stance but in reverse (the right breast uncovered, the right arm akimbo etc.) – mid 3rd c. For the same mould as the Louvre figurines also from Cyrenaica, Burn & Higgins 2001, no. 2709, pl. 114. Similar iconography to the Demetrias figurine, but still opposite stance Lilimpaki-Akamati 2008, no. 90, pl. 16.
Date: second quarter of 3rd c. (?).
Unpublished.

511. Large standing female figurine. (Pl. 32).
NAM 32788.
Demetrias, probably from the South Cemetery.
Identification: Arvanitopoulos 1915a, 187; Arch.Arv.44: 6/06/1915.
Clay: 2.5YR, 5/6 (red). Fine. Hard.
H: 0.3m. W: 0.13m. D: 0.073m.
Joined from many fragments and restored with plaster.
The left leg supports the weight. The figure wears a thin chiton and is wrapped in a himation which also covers the head and with both arms wrapped inside it. The hair is in tettix hairstyle. The left arm is bent at the elbow, with the forearm upwards, raising the himation. The right arm is bent at the elbow and rests on the hip. Groups of folds fall vertically from both arms. The figure stands on a high oval base.
Mould-made. Flat, Modelled back with oval vent.
White slip.
Date: late 3rd -first quarter of 2nd c. (?).
Unpublished.

512. * Large standing female figurine. (Pls. 32 and 87).
VM M 2061.
Demetrias, perhaps from the South Cemetery.
Identification: Arvanitopoulos 1915a, 187; Arch.Arv.44: 6/06/1915. It is included in this context because of the incisions forming an A at the back of the head.
Clay: 2.5YR, 6/6 (light red). Fine with very few inclusions. Hard.
H: 0.36m. W: 0.11m. D: 0.078m.
Joined from many fragments. Many parts have been restored with plaster, like the left side and back of the base, part of the shoulders, the chest and neck, the right hip, and the left side of the head.
The figure stands frontally with the right leg supporting the weight. The left leg is free to the side. The head turns and tilts to the left. It has a long neck with "Aphrodite's rings". The hair is in the knidian hairstyle with a bow-knot on the crown of the head. The face is round. She wears earrings. The figure wears a chiton and is wrapped in a long himation. The right arm is bent at the elbow and rests at the back hip. The left arm is lowered to the side with only the hand outside of the himation. She probably wears sandals, as is indicated by the red colour on the right foot, visible under the himation. The head is much smaller in proportions to the rest of the body, indicating that it was created from separate moulds.
Stands on a thin oval base.
Traces of incisions at the back of the head which could be the coroplast's marks, forming an A, but too unclear to be secure.
Mould-made. The head is made of two moulds. Hollow. Modelled back with oval vent. The bow-knot on the head is made with added clay.
Covered in white slip. Traces of red colour on the hair and the right foot. Traces of fuchsia colour on the left hand. Black spots all over.
Date: second quarter of 3rd c. (?).

517. * Actor figurine. (Pl. 33).
VM M 2074.
Demetrias, perhaps South Cemetery.
Identification: Included in this grave because of the similar iconography with the theatrical figurines in the grave (Arch.Arv.44, found on 2/06/1915 together with clay heads (προσωπεία) and the "Urinating Silenus").
Clay: 5YR, 6/6 (reddish yellow). Fine with a few fine inclusions.
H: 0.16m. W: 0.085m. D: 0.045m.
Almost intact. Joined from a few fragments. Missing part of the left side, which has been restored with plaster and the right foot. Cracks on the surface.
Standing actor figurine. Striding to the right. The right leg supports the weights, the left the free to the side. The body is completely wrapped in a large himation reaching the ground, leaving visible only the feet. The right arm is bent at the elbow and raised to the clavicle. The left is loose to the side, pulling the himation. Curved folds. The head turns to the left. The hair is curly to the shoulders. Wearing a wreath, probably from added pellets of clay. The mouth is open. The eyelids are shown.
Mould-made. Hollow. Modelled back.
White slip. Salmon-pink colour on the face and neck. Red colour on the hair.

UNKNOWN CONTEXT. PERHAPS SOUTH CEMETERY

Aphrodite

522. * Aphrodite leaning on a pillar. (Pl. 37).
VM M 2049.
Demetrias, unknown context. Perhaps from the South Cemetery.
Clay: 5YR, 6/8 (reddish yellow). Fine with a few inclusions. Hard.
H: 0.27m. W: 0.109m. D: 0.058m.
Heavily restored with plaster. Missing most of the back, the base, the lower right leg, the right thigh and many parts of the body. A large part of the original surface has been chipped off.
The figure is half-nude, leaning on a pillar. The left leg supports the weight going forward, the right being the free is to the side. Leaning on a pillar with both forearms, the right forward and the left back. The weight of the torso is supported on the pillar. Heavily sigmoid curve. The head turns to the left and is connected to the body with a long neck. The face is rounded and plump. The hair is in knidian hairstyle, pulled back in a bun, with a bow-knot on the crown of the head. She wears earrings. The thigh is shown thick. The figure is wrapped in a himation that covers the legs, leaving the pubic area uncovered, as well as half the right thigh and buttock, with a U-shaped roll over the right thigh. The himation goes back and is wrapped around the left forearm, draped over the top of the pillar. In front of the pillar there is a small perirrhanterion.
Stands on a high base, which is rectangular with a protrusion in the middle, where the left leg rests.
Mould-made. The head is made of two moulds, while the bow-knot is modelled and added after moulding. Hollow. Modelled back, although most missing.
White slip. Black spots. Red colour on the hair. Possibly lead white on the face.

Parallels: the head is from the same mould as a head in the NAM (see Pl. 5).
Bibliography: Hornung-Bertemes 2007, 121, no. 42, pl. 6.

523. * Group of Aphrodite and Eros. (Pl. 37)
VM M 2063.
Demetrias, unknown context. Perhaps from the South Cemetery.
Clay: 2.5 YR, 6/8 (light red). Fine with a few inclusions. Hard.
H: 0.32m. W: 0.16m. D: 0.081m.
Joined from many fragments. Missing the woman's head and the child's left arm. Restored with plaster in many places (the child's right leg, the drapery on the woman's left leg, her right thigh, the right side of the himation, her shoulders and parts at the back).
Standing half-nude female figure with nude boy. The right leg is the supporting, the left the free coming forward with the foot to the side. The torso of the female is uncovered. She is wearing a himation on the back, coming to the front from the right side, where she is holding it away from the body with the right arm, creating a roll of folds that creates a bow shape from the right hand to under the left armpit, where it drapes downwards in thick folds. It leaves the pubic area uncovered. She wears high-sole sandals with indentation between the first and second toes, with the soles painted red. Her left arm is resting on a pillar, holding a boy from his forearm with his arm upwards. The boy is also nude. His head is round with long hair to the shoulders and a bow on top of the head. The facial characteristics are not visible. Both bodies have a strong sigmoid pose, each on the opposite side of the other. The woman's right hand has three incisions with a sharp tool to indicate the fingers.
High oval base.
Mould-made. Hollow. Modelled back with round vent.
White slip. Red colour on the sandals. Black spots.
Type A.
Date: 3rd c.

524. * Crouching nude Aphrodite. (Pl. 37)
VM Kμ 4215/328.
Demetrias, unknown context. Perhaps from the South Cemetery.
Clay: 2.5YR, 5/6 (red). Fine with a few inclusions. Hard.
H: 0.136m. W: 0.076m. D: 0.045m.
Missing the right arm and broken below the right thigh. Joined from many fragments. Restored with plaster inside. She sits on her right leg and the left leg is bent and supports the weight to the side. The left arm is bent to the elbow and the forearm is extended forward. The head has a slight tilt to the right. The hair is in knidian hairstyle, with a bow-knot bun (or a crown?) on the crown of the head. Hornung-Bertemes identifies it as a kekryphalos. She wears earrings. From the trace of the broken right arm it seems that it was raised slightly to the front, maybe to conceal the naked body.
Mould-made. Hollow. Modelled back with rectangular vent. The surface has been smoothened with a cloth. Good quality mould.
White slip. Traces of salmon-pink colour on the flesh.
