Extended acknowledgements

I would not have been able to earn my DPhil without the help and support of many people in my life. The number of names involved, and particularly the magnitude of their contributions, is far too great to fully capture in writing, and I know that any acknowledgements will appear flimsy by comparison. I hope that these words are adequate for such a monumental task.

I want to thank my supervisors Professor Ed Tarleton and Professor Angus Wilkinson for supporting, guiding, and encouraging me throughout my winding DPhil. I also want to thank my collaborators and contributors Dr. Rakesh Kumar, Professor Dan Balint, Dr. Alan Xu, Dr. Dhriti Bhattacharyya, and Dr. Sylvie Aubry for providing valuable data and assistance during my journey.

I want to thank Dr. Daniel Celis Garza and Dr. Bruce Bromage for their role in the early stages of my DPhil and for investing the colossal effort that went into building and clarifying the code that I inherited. I also want to thank the members of the wider group, including Professor Haiyang Yu, Professor Fengxian Liu, and Dr. Álvaro Martínez Pechero. I want to give a special thanks to my colleague and friend Dr. Mujan Seif for providing encouragement and assistance during critical stages of my DPhil, without which I would have lost hope in becoming a scientist.

I want to thank Barbara, Miquel, Trini, and Lisa for helping to establish my home away from home. I am grateful for the security, guidance, and friendship you provided. I also want to thank all of my family in Spain for providing support throughout this project.

I want to thank Maria for the incredible support, strength, and compassion shown during this project. Thank you for providing nourishment when I was weary, encouragement when times were tough, and hope when it was most needed. Thank you for teaching me so much; I am grateful to have you in my life.

I want to thank my brother Bruno for being my closest friend over (and under) the course of this project. I am grateful that you witnessed the many changes in my life, and that I witnessed those in yours. I appreciate the many times you provided safe shelter from that which I could not bear. I appreciate the spiritual, mental, and physical growth you helped foster in me. I appreciate the many great adventures we undertook during this important period, and I am grateful for the fond memories of spending hours under the Sun together. I also want to thank Evelyne, Vega, Nico, and Chloe for joining us in this great journey.

I want to thank both my father and mother for enabling absolutely everything leading up to, and including, this project. I want to give a special thank you for your tenacious pursuit of treatments for my health issues during the pandemic. I am grateful for the immense sacrifices you made, and I know that there were probably many that I am not aware of. I am grateful for the great sense of security and reassurance you provided during periods when both were otherwise scarce. I can think of few words, and arrangements thereof, that can express this properly. Thank you.

Finally, although this DPhil bears my name, it is also the product of the kindness, generosity, and companionship of my many great friends: Harry, Edward, Guillermo, Tris, Andrew, Michael, Dante, Brian, Jonathan, Jodi, Liam, Augustin, Edith, Kamil, Will, Vedang, James, Riddhi, Jessica, Jess, Runze, Lise, Diana, Rawaa, Paola, Grover, Theresa, Yin, Sebastian, Maroi, Matthew, my friends in Kazakhstan, in Canada, in Spain, in the UK, and so many others who shared this journey with me.

To all of you, thank you.
