

Digital Preservation at Oxford and Cambridge

A collaborative research project to evaluate and provide sustainable recommendations for our digital preservation programmes

Post-holiday project update

Posted on 18 January, 2017 by Sarah

You may be forgiven for thinking that the DPOC project has gone a little quiet since the festive period. In this post, Sarah summarises the work that continues at a pace.

The Christmas trees have been recycled, the decorations returned to attics or closets, and the last of the mince pies have been eaten. It is time to return to project work and face the reality that we are six months into the DPOC project. That leaves us one and a half years to achieve our aims and bring useful tools and recommendations to Cambridge, Oxford, and the wider digital preservation community. This of course means we're neck-deep in reporting at the moment, so things have seemed a bit quiet.

So what does that mean for the project at the moment?

and finalised, expect a full update and some reflections on how this collaborative project is going.

SHARE THIS:

This entry was posted in audit & certification, project update, skills & competencies, technology, training by Sarah. Bookmark the [permalink \[http://www.dpoc.ac.uk/2017/01/18/post-holiday-project-update/\]](http://www.dpoc.ac.uk/2017/01/18/post-holiday-project-update/) .

About Sarah

Digital Preservation Specialist - Outreach and Training:
Bodleian Libraries, Oxford University

View all posts by Sarah →

This site uses Akismet to reduce spam. Learn how your comment data is processed.