

Additional file 4: List of national and regional public health bodies.

Below is the list of the institutions that were searched to identify priority lists for high-consequence infectious pathogens. This list was generated using the Pandemic PACT database to identify countries and regions with research investments in high-consequence diseases. For each WHO region, we searched total research funding amounts, and the total number of grants supported. For each region, we selected the top three funders by funding amounts or grant numbers when funding amounts were not reported. This enabled us to identify countries in each region that are likely to use priority disease lists for research funding. We then looked for national and regional public health bodies linked to the countries or the region they belonged to.
